Grad stayed on course on the court, in life

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

It’s certainly a high compliment to be considered a “fantastic kid,” and that’s what people think of Jordan Roberts.

“I just have a good attitude in school every day, and doing my work and staying positive,” said the Des Allemands resident.

As a Hahnville High School senior, Roberts has been a member of the basketball team throughout his time at the school. But there was a time when basketball wasn’t everything to him.

“I just have a good attitude in school every day, and doing my work and staying positive.”

— Jordan Roberts

“I’m a singer, too,” he said. “Singing was my first passion and then basketball.”

But during high school, basketball jumped to the forefront.

“Basketball is just what keeps me moving everyday,” said Roberts. “Without basketball, I’d probably be a totally different person. Every day I play basketball and I’m really committed. I just love everything about it.”

He was a member of the HHS boys’ basketball team for four years.

Roberts’ coach, Yussef Jasmine, said he was impressed with the senior, calling him “an amazing kid.”

“One of the great attributes of Jordan is he works so hard,” Jasmine said. “He loves the game of basketball ... always wants to stay late and come early.”

Jasmine was equally impressed with Jordan’s ability to learn the lessons and apply them.

“Basketball is a fast game,” he said. “You have to think on the fly and some of Jordan’s disability was special education and this never mattered to him. Jordan just doesn’t quit. He’d come into the office and ask questions ... ‘Coach, can I talk to you for a second?’ and he’d go through-out the school with a clipboard reviewing plays. He’s still out there functioning. Nobody treats him special like that.”

Roberts’ classes were inclusion, but Jasmine said his perseverance sets him apart. He’d stay in the gym all day and play basketball.

“At the varsity level, he was a hard worker,” he said. “It didn’t really manifest to a lot of minutes in the game, but he just wanted to play. He’s a well-mannered kid, and

Student gives back by volunteering hundreds of hours

HHS senior Heather Nocito at last Friday volunteering at Ashton Manor in Luling.

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

It was a hectic day for Heather Nocito last Friday as she volunteered still more hours at Ashton Manor Assisted Living & Memory Care in Luling.

“I had to help people,” Nocito said. “I had to get water and ice. I took out old photos on the bulletin board in the activity room and put new ones. I peeled crawfish for people - for those who couldn’t. I passed out drinks.”

Nocito’s day started at 8:50 a.m. and on arrival the recent Hahnville High School graduate also had to move boxes and food.

“Normally, exercise starts at 10 a.m. and at the end I hand out water and Ashton bucks (residents use them to get certain things at the center),” Nocito said.

Other days have not been as demanding with her playing cards with residents or serving them food and drinks.

But, it’s all fine. Nocito is a warrior volunteer.

With 142 hours spent at Ashton Manor during the summer and another 162 hours volunteered at the Satellite Center, it’s pretty clear Nocito likes helping others.

“It actually started as a senior project with two summers at Ashton and I just fell in love with it and kept doing it,” she said. “It’s giving back and helping people.”

— Heather Nocito

In a nutshell, Nocito adds, “I’m a people person.”

At the Satellite Center, she helped serve food to the homeless in New Orleans.

VOLUNTEER on 10A

Jai’lyn Williams reviewing a law book at the HHS library.

HHS grad will start college as a sophomore

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

To say Jai’lyn Williams is driven is an understatement.

When Williams begins studying pre-law at Xavier University of Louisiana this year, she’s starting as a sophomore. She graduated from Hahnville High School with enough college credits through the school’s Dual Enrollment Program for this achievement.

“I feel pretty great that I was able to complete so many credit hours in the program toward my degree,” said Williams, daughter of Joseph and Melissa Williams of Hahnville.

The Hahnville graduate was willing to go “the extra mile” to reach her goals and gain skills like multitasking.

“You don’t interact with the teacher as much, where it has to be disciplined and being about handling the workload on your own,” she said of dual enrollment. “I love being in college settings and it taught me a lot of maturity and how to be better prepared. It also taught me to make sure I take things seriously. You don’t want your grades to slip.”

And her direction in life became

— Jai’lyn Williams

equally clear to her.

“It’s just something I wanted to do. Medical runs in my family, but I went a different route. I love the criminal justice side of things and enjoy watching court shows and stuff,” she said. “I thought it’d be a perfect career for me and, eventually, I’d like to become a judge.”

Williams’ achievements shined at HHS as a member of the Superintendent’s Student Advisory Council. She welcomed the opportunity to serve with students from both sides of the river to discuss student climate, ways to improve the schools and what’s efficient about them.

Tiger golfer putted way to success, college scholarship

Took up the game as a freshman, quickly ascended district and state ranks

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Shelby Walls had never golfed competitively prior to her freshman year at Hahnville. She proved a quick study.

Walls qualified for the LHSAA state golf championship tournament in each of her four years as a player with the Tigers, a run that helped catapult her to earn a scholarship to continue to play the sport at Loyola University in New Orleans. She made that official at St. Charles Parish Public Schools' recent spring signing day ceremony.

Not bad for someone that took the game up simply because she needed a new hobby.

"I danced for the nine years prior to that, but six days a week of dancing ... I decided I didn't want to do that anymore," Walls said. "So my Dad told me, 'Well, you have to do something.'"

Her mother then chimed in with the suggestion to take up golf. Though Walls said her mother was not a golfer herself, she had encouraged her other daughters to take up the sport, in part because she knew it could potentially lead to scholarship opportunities and was an activity one could continue for the majority of life.

Smart call. That said, as one might expect, there was a learning curve, even if Walls' was briefer than most.

"I never, ever thought I'd get a scholarship when I first started. I wasn't good at all," she said. "I give a lot of credit to my coaches because they kept telling me, 'you can do this. Keep at it. You won't be that good immediately, but you have potential to do really well.'"

Immediately or not, it didn't take long. Walls earned All-District second team honors at the end of her freshman year.

"That's when it clicked for me that I could get really good," she said.

Putting is her forte, something she said stuck

"It's challenging. It's not quite like any other sport. You're constantly seeking what you can fix."

out to her soon-to-be coach at Loyola during her showcase session during recruiting.

"He kept commenting on how many putts I'd made," she said. "That I seem to be really good from this certain distance."

Walls finished 18th overall in her division in two of the past three years at the state championship. A top 20 finish in the state is strong, and Walls felt she could have done even better.

"We were all adjusting to the wind conditions. I felt like on the back nine, I had the hang of it, then the next day I did even better," she said.

ROTC leader, carpenter driven to serve others

Set to join Air Force following graduation

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Nathaniel Moss called the end of his time at Hahnville High School bittersweet.

The school is where the senior learned to commit himself to self-betterment and to the service of others. However, those lessons are exactly why he is ultimately ready to move on.

"Seeing what is possible is so exhilarating, so I know I need to go. I just wish I didn't have to."

— Nathaniel Moss

"It's heartbreaking, because I don't want to leave," Moss said. "I have so many friends here. I love what I'm doing with ROTC. I don't want to leave but I'm absolutely looking forward to the opportunities before me now.

"Seeing what is possible is so exhilarating, so I know I need to go. I just wish I didn't have to."

A devoted carpentry student and a group commander with the school's ROTC program, Moss looked at both ventures as ways he could find meaning in his world and push himself toward his potential.

Moss has excelled with both activities.

His carpentry expertise propelled him to first place in that event at the recent ABC trade skills competition in St. Rose. He's also used those skills to help others, such as a project he volunteered with for Habitat for Humanity that saw he and his fellow volunteers construct 20 bird houses for endangered species in a wildlife preservation.

Hahnville’s ‘Dat Fireman’ sidelined after surgery

Saints superfan, policeman pushing to get back on feet

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Though Barry Matherne put on a brave front, his voice was weary, especially striking when compared with the usually gregarious personality of the parish deputy, volunteer fireman and Saints superfan.

Matherne, the Hahnville man known as “Dat Fireman” for his Fireman Ed-inspired gameday costume, is in the early stages of recovery from major neck surgery to relieve what had become constant, debilitating pain. While he was able to undergo the surgery, and his recovery prognosis seems good, rehabilitating the pain is far from the lone source of stress to come from the ordeal.

“I started having several health problems ... I was diagnosed with high blood pressure, 150 over 110 was the average for awhile,” Matherne said. “I was at risk for a heart attack or stroke. I’d also had lower back, shoulder and neck pain for years ... I had a procedure to cauterize the nerve endings, and it helped me deal with the pain but it didn’t fix it.”

Eventually, though, that problem had to be addressed.

“It was getting harder and harder to even get out of bed in the morning,” he said. “I was using Icy Hot by the gallon.”

It limited him to the point Matherne had to be placed on leave as an officer, his mobility so limited that he had to be classified as unfit for duty in early March.

A visit to his physician yielded a referral to a surgeon, as this time his medical state seemed possibly more dire. The surgeon confirmed just that: he needed neck surgery, and it wasn’t a matter of if or when: he effectively needed it immediately.

Financially, this put him in a dire position, though his doctor was able to have the procedure pushed through for necessity and, Matherne said, waived his personal fees.

“He told them this wasn’t elective ... I’d lost all the fluid between my C4 and C5 vertebrae, and it was putting so much pressure on the other nerves in the area. It was causing my lower back, neck and shoulder pain,” he said.

He’ll be “on the shelf,” for all intents and purposes, for 1.5 to 2 months. But while insurance has helped pay for a portion of his medical fees, a considerable amount is coming out of pocket, and without current income, it’s created a bind.

“I’m in danger of losing my electricity and having my power turned off,” he said. “I was someone who was up to date on all my bills ... this morning, three bill collectors called me, back-to-back-to-back.”

“It was getting harder and harder to even get out of bed in the morning.”

— Barry Matherne

Denise Malone, Matherne’s fiancé, started a GoFundMe (titled Help for Barry) to help, and the popularity of Dat Fireman was apparent early, as within a day $800 was raised — including $200 by a fellow Who Dat.

“He and I aren’t close. We communicate from time to time as fans,” Matherne said. “He recognized me as a fellow Saints lover and he wanted to help me out, and I’m grateful.”

But he had to be convinced to post the page, as Matherne has always been one more comfortable giving than receiving.

Barry Matherne at a Saints game as “Dat Fireman.”

“I’m not used to being in this position,” he said. “It hurts to have to rely on friends and even strangers ... I feel I should be able to take care of myself on my own.”

Brooks, who absorbed considerable loss in Hurricane Katrina, said she told him there are times “you need help too.”

“You learn it’s better to give than receive, because receiving, it means you’re down on your luck,” she said. “He’s unselfish and is so giving, and I know it’s tough for him.”

Map of IMTT’s proposed pipeline route from St. Rose to Norco.

Proposed pipelines expected to bring more than $100M to parish

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

IMTT outlined plans for a proposed project to install three pipelines to transport renewable diesel from St. Rose to Norco.

Parker Schonekas, IMTT project development manager, told the St. Charles Parish Council at the May 6 meeting that they wanted to “communicate openly and transparently with our neighbors and the residents and businesses along the pipeline route.”

Although Schonekas did not identify the customer that the pipelines would connect to or project cost, he did say “two of the pipelines will transport products to support the expansion of an existing production facility in Norco.”

Additionally, he said these pipelines would bring more than $100 million in capital investment to St. Charles Parish. He added the project would create four to six new permanent jobs at IMTT and create hundreds of construction jobs.

Work is expected to begin by January and last five to six months, he said. An estimated four months of that time would be near neighborhoods.

The planned pipelines would go into an existing 600-foot-wide corridor posing minimal impact. They would extend through Ormond Subdivision and the New Sarpy area.

One of them will transport agricultural oils, including animal fats and plant-based oils, he said. The second pipeline will transport renewable or “green” diesel. The third proposed pipeline will transport black oil, which is a byproduct from crude oil refining.

All the proposed pipelines will be in an existing pipeline

Hospital's 'menu line' lady has a fan base

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

Need a tantalizing menu that will suddenly make you feel hungry or maybe even happier?

Dial (985) 785-4286.

"Good morning, good morning, good morning," says Sharon Brown in a recent recorded greeting. "It's a little rainy, but believe it not, this will be the best day of your week."

It's the St. Charles Parish Hospital's menu line, but don't expect a boring list of menu items read by Brown.

Her greeting becomes a melodic, tantalizing presentation of the day's menu items at the hospital's Oyster's Pearl restaurant. Those who know the restaurant don't really need persuading about Chef Blaine Guillot's lunch creations like grilled salmon, crawfish enchiladas, crawfish stuffed grilled chicken breast or seafood stuffed bell peppers.

They're scrumptious and highly sought.

But Brown's upbeat, welcoming presentation, which typically lasts about two minutes, has also generated fans.

"It's just who I am," cooed the hospital dietary aid who's been with the hospital for 10 years. "I keep company on the phone and in person. I want it to feel personal."

Sharon Brown recording the hospital's Oyster's Pearl menu.

"It is re-experiencing the grace which was the impetus at the beginning."
— Sharon Brown

Brown started like others at the restaurant taking turns recording the day's menu every other day, but her playful, conversational style made her some fans in the area who call just to hear her.

Guillot recalled how her status became known.

When Brown took a weeklong vacation, he got so many calls asking for her that he decided to give her the job full-time. Because he makes the menu, he didn't typically listen to the phone menu, but the phone calls asking "Who's the girl who does the menu line?" got his attention.

"Some people just call it to feel better," Guillot said.

They may be picking up Brown's welcoming vibe.

"I just kind of put myself in place of a personal conversation," she said of when she records the menu. "It's like the little things that are important to people."

Her approach is "each one, reach one," and that's what Brown is contemplating as she records her positive message of tasty dishes and thoughts. "You can affect people by making their day. It's kind of why I do it."

But her voice carries 25 years experience as a caterer, as well as her father being a chef, too.

It showed in a commercial her boss made with Chef Emeril Lagasse, which resulted in her making the closing comment, "Don't touch that dial." It aired on the Food Network and other stations.

Brown's comfort in the limelight may come from being among 11 children competing for attention.

"You tend to entertain mostly by telling stories," she said. "It's kind of like being at home, really. 'I'd rather make someone laugh than sad, and it just makes me want to do it more.'"

So when the opportunity came to record the hospital's lunch menu, Brown felt it. It was natural for her to say, "The BBQ is to die for," and listeners believed it.

"I love it," she said. "I feel that it's the way to reach people."

Guillot said Brown's warm, welcoming personality extends to visiting hospital patients, too. She delivers meals to their rooms and they love her.

Brown's celebrity status has even extended to people asking her how this works behind the scenes with questions like, "Do you go home and practice the

Historic brochure gives insight into Des Allemands' Black Prince Bayou

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

In what was considered the far reaches of St. Charles Parish in the early 1900s, a plan was coming together aimed at growing Des Allemands.

A company called St. Charles Development Co. of Waterloo, Iowa, was circulating a brochure with an invitation to locate on a tract of land that encompassed "thirteen thousand acres of there.

Prospective buyers were told land was suitable for planting, accessible to the bayou for fishing, had favorable climate and in close proximity to New Orleans.

The brochure also offered testimonials from individuals who had settled in the area and experienced the developer's "glowing promises."

Boat Landing on the property.

smooth prairie land and five hundred acres of timber, consisting of cypress, gum, hackberry, and live oak," according to the book, "A St. Charles Parish Louisiana: A Pictorial History."

The tract was on the called Black Prince Bayou (today it's called Black Prince Island) near Des Allemands. The area was described in a brochure offering a glimpse into life in Des Allemands at the time.

Newcomers were welcomed to a place on Black Prince Bayou, near present day Bayou Gauche, and told the area had a hotel on a boat landing. The company offered to pay all expenses, which included travel, hotel accommodations and a trip to New Orleans, to those willing to make the trip

"Few states have a more delightful climate than Louisiana. Those who condemn it as disagreeable and unhealthy do so through ignorance."

— Wm. Ritchie in a letter dated Aug. 30 1916

Over time, the project faded away, but the historical account includes letters from residents about life in the area.

When we painfully recognize and name our scars, we receive new life

I am sure everyone is familiar with sign language. In times of emergencies we see some government worker using sign language for the hearing impaired. Did you know what is the sign that signifies "Jesus?" You point the third finger of one hand to the palm of the other hand. The risen Christ is identified by the nail scars in his hands.

We learn a profound lesson from this. The risen Christ does not come to new life without the scars, the marks of his struggle with darkness. Instead of being wiped away by some sort of divine plastic surgery, those scars become the evidence of his risen life. The wounds left by his suffering and death on the cross become the identifying marks of God's goodness and love.

After our struggles with darkness, the scars remain as identifying mark of the God who takes our weakness and transforms it into strength, who takes our failure and turns it into victory.

Everyone has scars. No human being has ever escaped from them. I was burned when I was 12-years-old. My right leg and side are scarred today from almost being burned to death.

We also have emotional and spiritual scars. Emotional scars are sometimes unseen, but often when people have not dealt with the causes of the scars, you can see them in people's faces, especially their eyes. They are the result from attacks on our self-esteem. Usually, it involves some kind of rejection or put down especially from those we love and trust.

A person who grew up with negative criticism as part of everyday life is usually emotionally damaged and scarred. It takes a long while to work through this destructive criticism. However, with openness and persistence, a person can become the individual that God wants him or her to be.

Spiritual scars arise when we block God's blessing from our life. This often happens because some significant person in our lives expressed doubt or disapproval of our creative dreams and we project that same attitude onto God. We don't believe God wants us to do this or that. Or maybe we were raised with being afraid of God so we sat in the back of church all of our lives and were afraid to come up to the front and get involved in worshipping a God who loves us.

Jesus' scars produced hope and encouragement. Jesus appeared to his followers after his resurrection in a peaceful, blessing the disciples, ministering to their immediate needs for reassurance that it was truly he. Jesus invited Thomas to touch his scars. The disciples rejoiced when they recognized Jesus from his scars. This empowered them to move on.

Scars are not easy to deal with. Before a wound can heal, it must be seen and exposed to the surface, to the light and air. Physical scars are easy to expose. Emotional and spiritual scars are more difficult to deal with because of the shame associated with them. "What will they think of me once they know I have a drinking problem, a drug problem, a gambling disorder, a sexual problem, whatever?" "Will my church still accept me?"

These very thoughts block the healing power of God's Spirit. When we prevent the Holy Spirit from working in our lives, we reject new life. However, when we painfully recognize and name our scars, we receive the new, abundant life that God desires for each of us. Let us trust in our loving God who wants to heal our wounds.

6 smart money moves for new college graduates

More than 70 percent of college graduates began their career owing more than $37,000 in student loans in 2017. Considering the additional living expenses they'll soon face, college graduates would be wise to focus on their financial future now, says Brandt Dufrene, President and CEO at First National Bank USA. First National Bank USA has highlighted six smart financial decisions graduates should consider to position themselves for financial success as they embark on their next phase of life.

First National Bank USA recommends the following financial tips for new college graduates:

- Live within your means. Supporting yourself can be expensive, and you can quickly find yourself struggling financially if you don't take time to create a budget. Calculate wages after taxes, then figure out how much money you can afford to spend each month while contributing to savings. Factor in recurring expenses such as student loans, monthly rent, utilities, groceries, transportation expenses and car loans.
- Pay bills on time. Missed payments can hurt your credit history for up to seven years and can affect your ability to get loans, the interest rates you pay and your ability to get a job or rent an apartment. Consider setting up automatic payments for regular expenses. Take advantage of any reminders or notification features. You can also contact creditors and lenders to request a different monthly due date from the one provided by default.
- Avoid too much debt. Understand the responsibilities and benefits of credit. Shop around for a card that best suits your needs, and spend only what you can afford to pay back. Credit is a great tool, but only if you use it responsibly.
- Plan for retirement. It may seem odd since you're just beginning your career, but now is the best time to start planning retirement. Contribute to retirement accounts like a Roth IRA or your employer's 401(k), especially if there is a company match. Invest enough to qualify for your company's full match. Automatic retirement contributions quickly become part of your financial lifestyle without having to think about it.

• Prepare for emergencies now. Start an emergency fund and do your best to set aside the equivalent of three to six months' worth of living expenses. Make saving a part of your lifestyle with automatic payroll deductions or automatic transfers from checking to savings. Put your tax refund toward saving instead of an impulse buy.

• Get free help from your bank. Many banks offer personalized financial checkups to help you identify and meet your financial goals. You can also take advantage of their free digital banking tools.

In the May 2, 2019 issue of the St. Charles Herald-Guide in the "Council argument leads to putting the public, media in the hallway" article, Councilman Paul Hogan said he never maintained that recognition at council meetings was becoming difficult, though the story said otherwise. The story also quoted Hogan as saying that the meeting dispute on April 22, 2019 was a "preset, planned event for this to occur." Hogan says he was actually referring to a Feb. 4, 2019 meeting.

BASKETBALL from 2A

that’s one of the great attributes of all.

“He was always supporting his teammates. He was a great kid to have in the program.”

Jasmine said Roberts’ future is bright with his determination and constant push to achieve.

“I think Jordan’s story is a great one because so many other kids who have a lack of playing time just quit,” he said. “But he appreciates working as a team and working with people who care about him, as well.”

Roberts has his eyes set on trying out for the basketball team at Delgado Community College in New Orleans. He hopes to start at the college in August.

“I feel I’m good enough to play for the team, but to go pro I’d have to continue putting in the work,” he said.

Roberts also passed the Customer Service certification test in the Principle of Business.

He’s contemplating a degree in hospitality, but hopes he can combine that with being on the basketball team at the college.

“To me, I really love shooting. I shoot every day.”

VOLUNTEER from 4A

Heather Nocito with Ashton Manor Assisted Living & Memory Care residents at lunch.

“We served them and talked to them,” the Hahnville resident said. She is the daughter of Anthony and Tammy Nocito. “We did Battle for the Paddle. We help anybody in need, and there’s a lot of field experience, too.”

As a student in the center’s Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism class, the HHS senior was able to be of service.

“I found something I enjoyed so I kept doing it,” she said of volunteering.

Nocito said it was fun and she learned valuable people skills, gained experience in handling customers and addressed real world problems.

In her junior year, she came out of her shell. Nocito joined the Student Council, and got into volunteerism.

The light went on, she said.

She also appreciated her high school.

“Hahnville High was a fun school and I had a lot of student involvement ... always something new on Fridays and weekends or games to go to,” she said.

Although she’s moving to Jefferson Parish to live with her father in anticipation of going to college, she intends to keep on volunteering. If she does enroll, she’s going into hospitality management.

As she contemplates the next step in her life, Nocito reflected on what she loved most about HHS.

“I’ll miss the teachers,” she said. “I had awesome teachers.”

PRE-LAW from 4A

“It was pretty interesting,” she said. “I learned teamwork and how to be open minded to other people’s ideas and to be honest and to be sure you speak without judging someone.”

The achievement fit with her goals.

“I definitely wanted to have at least a 4.0 GPA,” she said. “I also wanted to be more involved at school, with BETA and the Advisory Council and in theater.”

In eighth grade, Williams was considered gifted in theater and was advised it would be a good fit.

“I loved Mr. and Mrs. Harms,” she said of her theater teachers. “It worked out well. I stayed in it all four years and it taught me more about being confident as far as stage, monologue and acting.”

Most of Williams’ work was as costume supervisor. She spent time in wardrobe and building sets, and it worked better with the Dual Enrollment Program and she still benefited from the environment.

Overall, she built on those experiences.

“I enjoy the teachers, having a good education and good environment that I was comfortable being in,” she said. “The friends I met, including those from other schools, taught me a lot of life lessons.”

And from there, Williams said she’s ready for the future.

“It shows I’m moving on to the next chapter and the adult world, and I’m getting older,” she said. “Things are going to be different ...

waking up at 6 a.m. for classes and working eight hours a day. It’s going to be a different ballgame.”

Jai’lyn Williams

- » She plans to be a pre-law student at Xavier University of Louisiana in fall.

GOLF from 5A

Shelby Walls

- » Began playing competitive golf as a freshman and finished her career with two top 20 finishes at state.
- » Considers putting the strength of her game.
- » Will be attending Loyola-New Orleans on athletic scholarship.
- » Took up the sport as a way to keep busy after walking away from dancing, which she did for nine years.

That it’s a game of adjustments is a major part of why Walls has developed a passion for golf.

“It’s challenging,” she said. “It’s not quite like any other sport. You’re constantly seeking what you can fix, leaning on your coaches, then fighting things out for yourself ... the mental part is so significant, it’s not just about the physical. If it’s raining, the ball rolls slower. With the wind, you have to use this club or hit this a certain way so it goes this way. The game changes constantly.”

Among her other activities at Hahnville, she was an editor of the yearbook and a member of the Advanced Honor Society, Beta Club and National Honor Society.

She plans to study forensic science as her major at Loyola, noting she’s always had great interest in police work as well as science, so it was a natural fit for her to merge the two together.

“In chemistry class, my teacher Miss Rome had a listing called ‘The Poisoner’s Handbook’ about the start of forensics and forensic science. I thought, OK, this might be for me,” Walls said. “I had wanted to be a doctor or physician’s assistant for awhile ... this fit both sides of what I’m interested in.”

ROTC from 5A

to serve the community, and that’s the great thing about it,” Moss said. “It’s been a passion of mine. I feel like I haven’t necessarily learned as much or improved myself as I should have in school. But getting out there in the real world with a trade is important. I looked at a lot of industrial arts programs here, but I chose carpentry as a foundation for self-improvement.”

He joined the ROTC as a way to set himself on a positive track. He said through his four years with the program, he learned how to lead and built his core values.

Moss credited the ROTC’s upperclassmen when he first joined as inspirations.

“I watched them, these people I look up to, and I see where they’re going and what they’re doing. I’m seeing people being proud of them, and I wanted to be like them. I wanted to be like them when I became a senior,” he said.

That came full circle recently.

“We did a drill banquet at the end of the year ... we gave some awards to the underclassmen. Listening to them tell their stories and talk about how they look up to us and how we’ve helped shape them in the long run, it was really heartwarming,” he said.

But the most heartwarming experiences he enjoyed while at Hahnville came when ROTC had the opportunity to work with U.S. veterans, such as a Veteran’s Day event the corps visited this year.

“We presented colors and talked to all the veterans there ... watching so many people cry, and so many people who care about them,” Moss said. “To show them we haven’t forgotten ... it was one of the proudest things I’ve had the chance to be a part of.”

Moss himself, in fact, plans to enlist in the Air Force after graduation, and will also enroll at the University of New Orleans to further his education.

He also plans to continue to grow as a carpenter, a pastime he pursues in his own time away from the classroom.

“The things we do in the classroom, mostly focusing on framing houses and industry ... I like to do cabinetry and nice precision work at home,” Moss said. “To me, it’s like an art. It may not be a traditional form of art like music or painting ... but you can mold it to be anything you want to be.”

Nathaniel Moss

- » Earned first place in carpentry at recent ABC trade skills competition.
- » Was group commander with ROTC corps as senior.
- » Used building skills by volunteering with Habitat for Humanity.
- » Credits then-upperclassmen with ROTC among his inspirations during his freshman year.

We want to congratulate our seniors,
ALEXIS LANDRY & TYLER ABADIE, and all 2019 seniors on their graduations!

DAT FIREMAN from 6A

As “Dat Fireman,” he began donning his now-iconic outfit in 2009, when the Saints capped off his first season in superfandom with the team’s first and only Super Bowl victory.

Since that time, “Dat Fireman” has done plenty away from the football field, supporting different charitable causes and making appearances at special fundraising events, in addition to his constant support of his lifelong favorite team.

He said the most rewarding part of his stature in the fanbase is the opportunity it provides for charity work. The feeling he gets when he can lift the spirits of sick children surpasses any team victory. He began attending fundraisers, starting with a Kidd Kraddick Foundation fundraiser five years ago, and charitable appearances have become a passion of his.

“That’s why I’m so proud to be part of the Who Dat Nation ... we always step forward to help other people,” he said. “People label us in the Big Easy Mafia as superfans ... the thing that makes us super is the charity work we do, going to events and putting them together year-round.”

He said he cannot wait to get back to that routine.

“To touch the lives of others just by making an appearance, raising money for worthy causes ... it’s the most rewarding part about it,” he said.

right-of-way and be parallel and adjacent to several existing, active pipelines, he said. Pipeline installation, maintenance and operations will comply with the Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration, Louisiana Department of Natural Resources and state Department of Transportation regulations.

They will be buried with no signs of operation.

Councilwoman Marilyn Bellock asked about the potential of leakage.

Schonekas said the two pipelines would carry used cooking oil from places like McDonald’s processed into renewable diesel, he said.

“There is little chance of leaking,” he said. “They are fairly benign products.”

He added the lines would be inspected frequently.

Construction impact will be minimal, Schonekas said, adding they would pose little impact to the surrounding residential areas or wetlands.

“IMTT and its contractors will horizontally directional drill the pipe, which only requires a small rig and pad for installation on one end and a pipe string on the other end,” he said.

Where needed, the company will dig trenches and lay the pipeline in a more traditional construction process.

Councilman Dick Gibbs, whose district includes Ormond, said he supports the project, but wanted to know what type vehicles would be coming into the area.

Although the contractor hasn’t been chosen yet, Schonekas said they were anticipating two drilling machines and flatbed trucks delivering the pipe. He said he’s met with the leaders of the Ormond Civic Association to advise them of potential impacts from the project. Once access routes and the construction plan is defined, IMTT will solicit approval of the association and Gibbs.

menu line.”

The answer is no.

“It just comes,” she said. “I never know exactly what I’m going to say, but many thoughts come with what’s on the menu.”

She likes recording on the fly to keep the mood spontaneous, adding, “There’s a lot rolling around in this head.”

Brown added, “I’m here so I might as well have fun while I’m here.”

Anyone who calls at Halloween may hear her playful, diabolical laughter along with a ghost voice announcing crab pasta is on the menu. At Christmas, she might break out in song with “Happy Holidays,” but it’s as much of a delightful surprise to her as it is to the caller.

She may include a weather report if it’s raining and how a caller need only grab an umbrella to avoid missing red beans and rice.

“I’m happy that something as small as the menu line can make a difference in a person’s day,” Brown said. “It’s the little things that matter the most, and to me that’s something like the menu line. It’s has a positive effect on people – and I love it.”

FLOOD INSURANCE COVERAGE!
FLOOD INSURANCE COVERAGE!

One of the most important ways to prepare for a flood is to buy flood insurance coverage.

Most homeowner insurance policies do NOT cover flood damage.

A flood insurance policy normally takes 30 days from the date of purchase to go into effect.

So don't wait until a flood is imminent to purchase your policy!

BLACK PRINCE from 8A

A map showing the location of Black Prince Island.

In a letter by Wm. Ritchie of Des Allemands to Mr. Chas. T. Knapp, Chicago, Illinois, dated Aug. 30, 1916, Ritchie recounts farming conditions in the area.

“I came here five years ago with my wife and five children from Ohio,” Richie states. “We have not had one day’s sickness. Doctor has never been in the house. Few states have a more delightful climate than Louisiana. Those who condemn it as disagreeable and unhealthful do so through ignorance. There is no need to seek mountain and seashore resorts in summer, for the breezes from the Gulf keep the summer months pleasant.”

He further states the summers are long, but the maximum temperature never exceeds and, seldom equals, that of inland cities much further north. The winters are mild and all but the delicate plants grow through winter.

Richie adds, “I am convinced that we can raise cattle and hogs cheaper here than in any other state of the Union.”

The promise of Des Allemands extended into other writings at the time.

In an article in The Country Gentleman, James H. Collins agreed about the fertile growth of the area.

Collins, who wrote about agriculture, states, “If the Corn Belt farmer will follow his own soil down the Mississippi River to the Delta Country below New Orleans, he can find a new farm so fertile and deep that I should not give him too many particulars because he probably would not believe the facts until he sees for himself.”

Early Des Allemands

- » The area was named for the Germans then became Des Allemands.
- » Des Allemands had a lighthouse on Torres Island.
- » The area is in St. Charles and Lafourche parishes.
- » The people have designated their home as the “Catfish Capital of the Universe.”

Rachel Yiu

Valedictorian

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

Neither Rachel Yiu nor her best friend, Paidon Gravois, expected to be named Hahnville High School’s valedictorian or salutatorian, but they did know they worked hard.

“We never really competed, although vals and sals often compete,” said Yiu, who was named valedictorian. “But we didn’t think it was going to be either of us. We just did what we had to do to make it and to be where we are now – graduation.”

The two knew they were in the top 10 students, but they weren’t vying for honors and certainly didn’t expect to be the top two students in a class of 350 graduates.

“We worked hard and did everything we needed to do, but we honestly didn’t think our GPAs were going to be up there,” Yiu said.

But they were and, when the news came of their recognition, she said it was like “Okay, now we have to write a speech.”

Although Yiu is still working on what she’ll tell the aspiring minds of the HHS Class of 2019, she does know it needs to be about inspiring her classmates on to the next level in their lives. Besides, she’s still processing being the school’s No. 1, which she considers awesome and “pretty weird.”

“That little girl in the corner coloring was me,” she said of growing up in her parents’ business, the Bamboo Garden restaurant. “As a kid, I just kind of took from the lives I wanted to pursue – and chose what I wanted.”

— Rachel Yiu

“It’s a feeling I can’t really describe, but it’s exhilarating to know my hard work paid off – but that’s about it,” she said.

Yiu struggles with the recognition because she feels she doesn’t deserve it, although she worked hard to get it.

“That little girl in the corner coloring was me,” she said of growing up in her parents’ business, the Bamboo Garden restaurant. “As a kid, I just kind of took from the lives I wanted to pursue – and chose what I wanted.”

Yiu’s parents, Danny and Emily Pan, own the restaurant in Boutte.

Paidon Gravois

Salutatorian

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

The news she had finished as salutatorian came unexpected to Paidon Gravois, even after she'd heard some talk of it in the week leading up — and even as the phone call came from Hahnville High to give the official word.

"The phone rang and I thought, 'no way,'" said Gravois, who moments earlier had heard from best friend Rachel Yiu that the latter had been named valedictorian. "Rachel had just messaged me and my mom told me, 'Paidon, they want to talk to you.' I started crying.

"I never saw myself ever being in this position."

— Paidon Gravois

"I never saw myself ever being in this position."

Yet here she is, as result of her commitment, hard work and inner drive. Gravois is soon headed to LSU, and stands to become the first person in her family to go to college and graduate. Her desire to do just that has fueled her.

"I knew if I wanted to go on to bigger and better things, I had to be my own driving force," Gravois said. "I come from a single mother family, and she always told me nobody is going to just hand you anything. You have to earn everything. So if I wanted to go off to college and become the first in our family to graduate, I knew I had to be that change myself."

It's led her to so many late nights of finishing assignments and preparing herself to excel in the classroom.

Recognition as salutatorian tells her it was worth it.

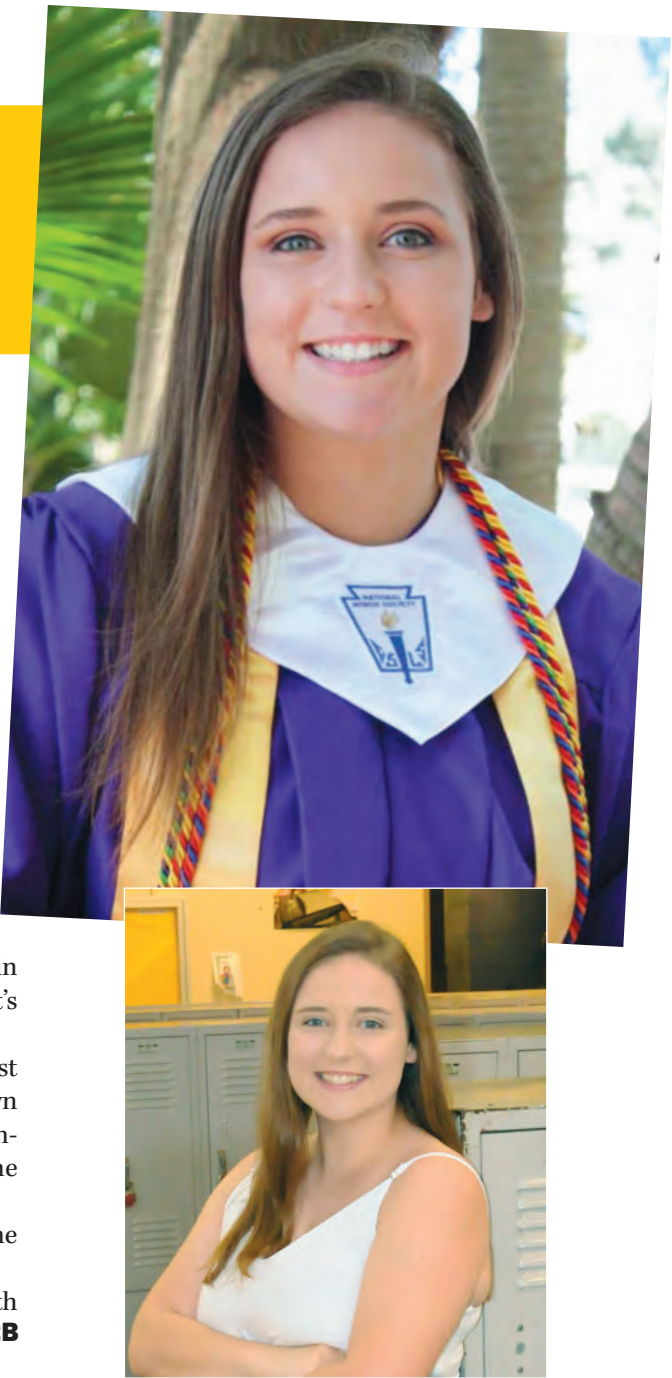

"It showed me all of the hard work really paid off in the end," Gravois said. "I just feel really fortunate. It's such an honor."

She also credited her friendship with Yiu as a catalyst for her success in the classroom. The two have known one another since 8th grade and became close as freshmen, and over the years they've continued to push one another down a positive path.

While Gravois has always made good grades, she said Yiu spurred her to step things up a notch.

"As and Bs, every now and then I'd make a C. In 8th

YIU from 2B

National Beta Club, InterAct Rotary Club and National Honor Society.

Yiu will head to Louisiana State University (where Gravois also plans to attend) where she will study electrical engineering with a minor in business beginning in fall.

“It’s a challenge not a lot of people want to embrace, but sometimes you have to take a risk and hope for the best,” she said. “I’ve always loved challenges, and I decided I’m gonna go for it. It’s more like ‘I saw it and I’m gonna take it and run with it.’”

She understands her chosen profession is a typically male-dominated field, but she decided: “Sometimes, different is good.”

The move was inspired by Barbara Jo Pease, who taught at Louisiana Youth Seminar and spoke about working in Shell Norco’s management. Pease said the job spurred her to go into something like engineering.

“I thought that was interesting, thinking about it,” Yiu said. “It kind of helped me with my mom being a cancer survivor, and I thought I could help people coming out of hospitals, so I kind of had a double dip on both ends. The business minor came up with being in a family that owns a business.

“I would like to see myself conquer it and be able to achieve this.”

“As a first generation student, you just realize the situation you’re in and determine if you want to be better than that or below that,” she said. “It’s like I want to be better than where my family is at right now. I decided I can be better here. I just have to be me.”

At HHS, she excelled. Yiu’s awards include Summa Cum Laude and the Superintendent’s Award, the Dow Scholastic Achievement award, as well as the AP Scholar Award.

For tennis, she’s been named to the LHSAA All Academic Girls Team and her team finished as co-district champions. She was also honored with the Chevron High School Scholar Athlete Award.

Her academic recognitions also include the Spanish II Award and the AP U.S. History Award. She won first place in the school and district in the Young Author’s Poetry competition, and her science fair project swept first place at the school and district.

Yiu is a member of the National Art Honor Society,

GRAVOIS from 3B

Paidon Gravois is headed to LSU after her efforts in high school earned her honors as salutatorian for Hahnville’s Class of 2019. Gravois plans to major in agriculture and extension education and minor in entomology once she makes her way to Baton Rouge.

grade, though, she’d come out with all As and I’d be like, ‘wow, I wish I could do that.’ And she said, ‘Oh, but you can ...’ We were constantly supporting each other, saying, ‘OK, make sure you get this done.’ We kept on raising each other, and so it’s cool we both got this (recognition),” she said.

She’s long kept busy, a member of the National Honor Society and Spanish Honor Society, and a Freshman Advisory mentor. She was a member of the Hahnville Hi-Steppers dance team and team captain for her senior year.

At LSU, the Des Allemands resident plans to major in agriculture and extension education, which she sees as an avenue to become an agriculture or environmental science teacher down the line.

She’ll minor in entomology, the branch of zoology concerned with the study of insects, revealing one of her more unique quirks — Gravois is crazy about bugs.

“I found my love of bugs in 4-H,” she said with a laugh. “I competed in a little identification of bugs contest. For some reason I was interested in doing it ... I ended up winning first in the parish and then second in the state.”

Competition rules are that first and second place can’t compete again.

Much to her chagrin, of course.

“I trained with the person who beat me. He got me by a point,” she said with a wry smile. “So he held onto that.”

Some of her other many honors include the Superintendent’s Award, Dow Scholastic Achievement Award and Summa Cum Laude. She was also named Outstanding 4H Member and an All-American dancer.

She said the chance to go to LSU provided a good opportunity to go off and enjoy the true college experience while not venturing too far away to see her family and friends regularly.

LSU is also the only school of her considerations that offered entomology, so the decision became rather clear.

Teaching is an avenue she realized she had interest in from her time as a team captain of the Hahnville Hi-Steppers, where she was able to emerge as a leader.

“I found I really liked that,” she said. “I had a great support system and got close with my teachers and sponsors ... a lot of people looked up to me, and it felt good. So teaching seemed right.”

Paidon Gravois – Hahnville Class of 2019 Salutatorian

- » Parents are Hannah Dufrene and Darold Clement

Hahnville quarterback Andrew Naquin rolls away from St. Augustine's pressure during Tuesday's spring game.

Tigers fall to Knights in spring game

Hahnville offense comes together late, but will look to address turnovers, big plays allowed

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Though a veteran of the prep coaching game, Hahnville's Nick Saltaformaggio doesn't have to go back far to know the result of a spring game isn't necessarily a sign of things to come.

"Two years ago, we got clobbered in the spring and we went to play for a state championship," Saltaformaggio said. "Last year, we looked great and went 6-6."

All that said, he's also a realist: he knows his Tigers have some ground to make up this summer following its spring game with St. Augustine in Boutte Tuesday, which went the Purple Knights' way, 35-21 in the timed scrimmage between the teams.

After work for the special teams units, then second and third team action early on, the two first teams played one another over two 15 minute halves, simulating game conditions.

St. Augustine quarterback Kendell Sampson Jr. was the day's star, accounting for four touchdowns. Hahnville turned the ball over three times, which contributed to the Knights jumping ahead 28-7 early in the second half.

"I'm just glad to be back ... it feels good to be back."

— HHS running back Darryle Evans on return from knee injury that ended his 2018 season.

"You don't want to make more of it than it is," Saltaformaggio said. "Our kids competed well and played hard, I thought. (St. Augustine) has some real good football players ... we won't play anyone on our schedule better than that."

But when the subject of Saltaformaggio's talented young players, he also made it clear he expected improvement.

"They've gotta play better. Having talent and playing well are two different things," he said.

On the first play of the timed scrimmage between the first teams, St. Augustine cornerback Edward Gilds III jumped a short route and intercepted Trey LaBranch carries for the Tigers.

Andrew Naquin, returning the pick-off for a touchdown to put the Purple Knights ahead 7-0.

Hahnville responded on a 40-yard touchdown run by Darryle Evans, seeing his first live action since injuring his knee last season and missing the Tigers' stretch run.

He was eager to get back to action.

"It was tough (sitting out) ... I knew I had to stay strong and support my

HHS’ Ryan adds two more to state title count

Kamryn Ryan tops the podium for one last time during her prep gymnastics career.

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Kamryn Ryan wrapped up a stellar gymnastics career at Hahnville High by securing her ninth and tenth Level 8 state championship wins this year, taking top honors in the balance beam and vault events.

Ryan placed third in the all-around competition, fifth in the floor event and 18th in the bars event at the championship competition, which took place at Baton Rouge Magnet.

Her winning marks were 9.35 on vault and 9.6 on the balance beam.

Joining Ryan at state were fellow Tigers

Katie Kunkel and Albert Berggren, the latter the first male gymnastics competitor in Hahnville history.

Like Ryan, Kunkel competes in Level 8 which is the top classification in the LHSAA. She scored 8.25 on bars, 8.3 on vault and 7.2 on the beam. Her vault finish placed her inside the state’s top 20 in the event at 19 overall.

On the boys side, Berggren competed at the highest LHSAA classification of Level 10. He finished with scores of 9.9 on the high bar, 10.9 on rings, 10.8 on the parallel bars and 11 in the floor event. He placed fifth overall in the pommel horse for his best finish, earning a score of 9.8.

Ryan signed in March to continue her athletic career at the University of Alabama, becoming the first gymnast in St. Charles Parish history to earn an athletic scholarship for the sport.

Hahnville established its gymnastics program coinciding with Ryan’s arrival and has since grown enough to not only compete as a team at state, but to finish second in its division in 2018 when, along with Ryan, then-sophomore Kunkel and freshman Emily Gooden each competed at level 8 and placed 10th and 15th overall in state, respectively, helping to lift Hahnville within four points of state champion Dutchtown last season.

During her freshman year, Ryan took the field by storm, overcoming a field with numerous upperclassmen competitors to earn the state’s all-around girls gymnastics championship in Level 8.

She concluded her career with two overall all-around state titles and eight individual event titles. She also leaves HHS with four second place finishes and a third place finish in individual events and placed at least top three in the all-around championship every season.

teammates,” said Evans, a powerful rusher who started last season prior to his injury. “I’m just glad to be back. It feels good to be back.”

Knights passer Kendell Sampson Jr. started to heat up from there. He hit wideout Khi Mathieu on a quick screen and Mathieu got loose for a touchdown of more than 50 yards, pushing St. Augustine to an eventual 14-7 lead for the scrimmage’s unofficial halftime.

The Tigers lost a fumble to start the second half, and while the Knights did not return it for a score as it initially appeared – the runner was ruled to be down after recovery – another Sampson touchdown pass capped the drive to make it 21-7.

Hahnville’s next possession ended with its third turnover of the scrimmage on a sack and fumble, setting up St. Augustine at the Tigers’ 30. Sampson connected with receiver Kenneth Rivarde Jr. from there on a 30 yard score.

The Tigers regrouped from there and put together a pair of quality drives to end the day. Evans punched in a score from the 1 after strong runs by he and Trey LaBranch to get down there. Sampson scored on a draw to answer for St. Aug. T

To cap the day, the Tigers drove inside the St. Aug 5 once more, this time with Naquin connecting with wideout Corey Lorio on a 2-yard touchdown pass.

It was an up and down day for Naquin, who will be a junior next season. The turnovers came coupled with some strong downfield throws, and he led the scoring drives with poise.

“Naquin did some things better this time around, from where we were last spring, and some things were the same,” Saltaformaggio said. “He’s still a sophomore, and we’ve had eight practices ... a lot goes into it.”

The bottom line, the coach said, for his offense is to avoid the turnovers.

“You turn it over, you’ve always got problems,” Saltaformaggio said. “If we take care of the ball, we’ll be fine.”

As for a defense he’s cited high expectations for, one can expect changes. While he was tempered overall, Saltaformaggio said St. Augustine “exposed” some weaknesses to the point he said the Tigers may veer away from the 3-3-stack defense he’s been long known for.

“It’s been good to me for 10 years, but it’s not good right now,” he said. “So in the offseason, we’ll make some adjustments.”

Under Eric Gueniot’s leadership, Hahnville High School’s band and color guard have taken high honors, and now Gueniot is being recognized as the American Legion’s Educator of the Year.

“Watching the children succeed is one of the reasons I do this job,” Gueniot said. “We never teach winning or use getting a reward as our motivation, we teach the kids to be good people and to do their best and we find continuously that good results follow.”

Recognized by American Legion Post 131, Gueniot is in his 27th year teaching. Eight of those years have been at HHS where he has taught band, percussion and color guard.

“Being selected was very humbling, and just being nominated was an honor, he said. The recognition came as a complete surprise, Gueniot added, and was humbling with so many deserving nominees.

“Being the band director at Hahnville is great job and a position that carries with it a lot of history,” he said. “Some great people have been director at this school before me and some of the leading members of the St. Charles community were members of this band.”

Under his leadership and the assistance of Michael Danigole, the band has won the sweepstakes at the district festival and advanced to state competition. The color guard has won the championship at the Winter Guard competition, and as result Gueniot was named district Band Director of the Year.

Gueniot’s recognitions include being recognized in NSU graduate exit surveys where students named him regularly as a great teacher in music and in service courses.

He’s also been selected Teacher of the Month multiple times, as well as is a three-time Teacher of the Year finalist, and has been chosen as a guest conductor of several honor bands.

“Perhaps my proudest achievement was being selected as band director of the Year for Louisiana Music Educators Association District VII,” Gueniot said. “This was an honor bestowed upon me by my peers in the teaching profession.”

He’s also a member of Phi Beta Mu, a band directing fraternity where members are nominated and selected. He’s been a performing member of the Baton Rouge Symphony Orchestra for 25 years.

“At each level, I know I learned as much from teaching as my students learned from me and at each stop I believe I left the program improved from where I inherited it.”

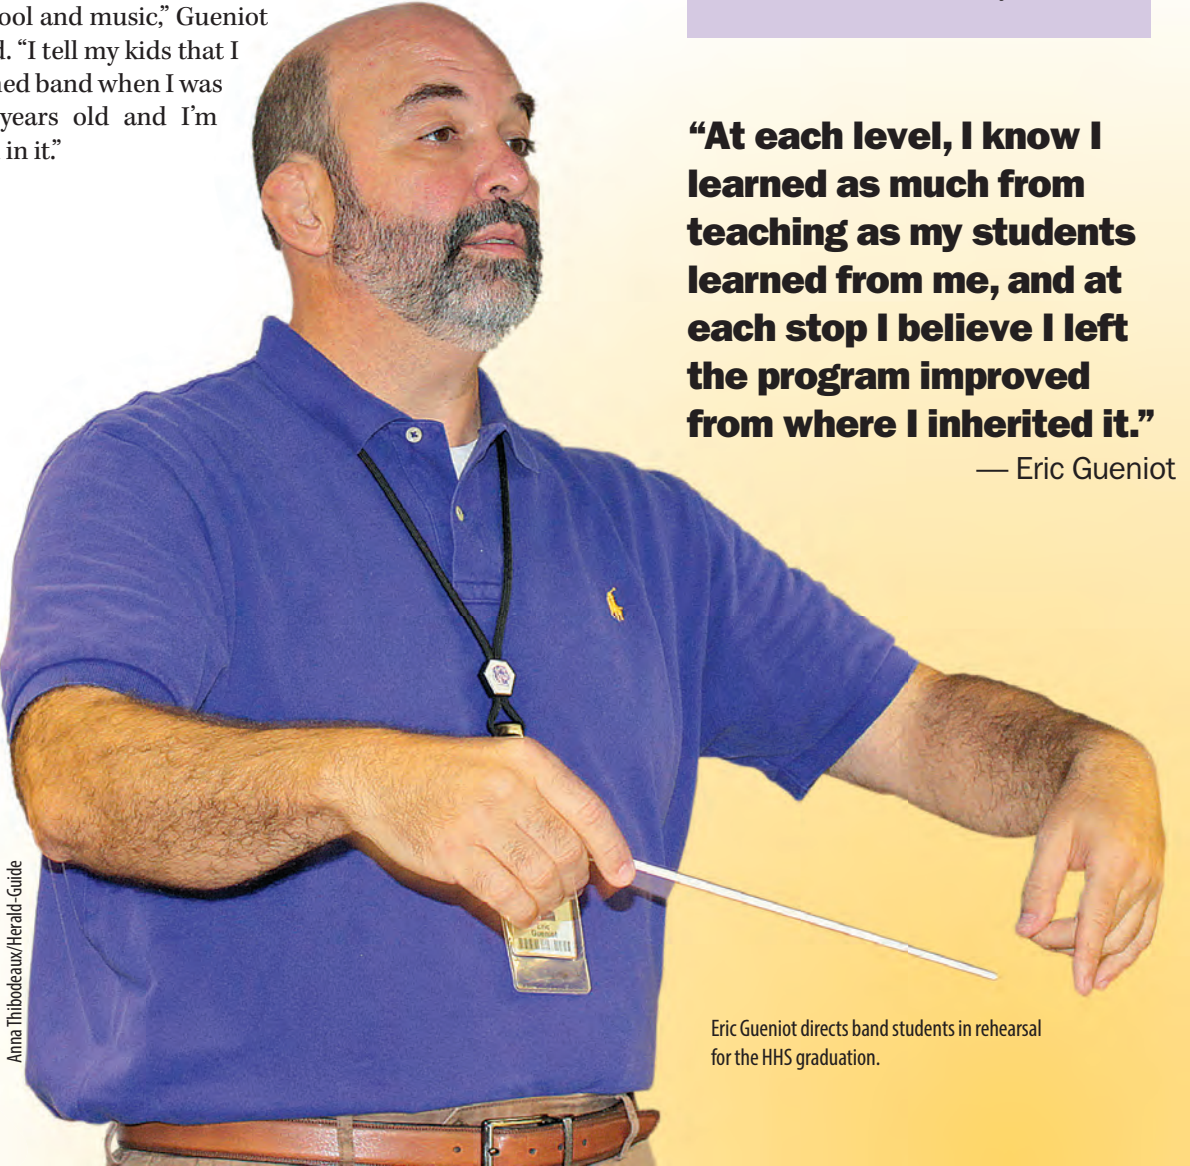

At HHS, band students participate in community events, including two parades each year and smaller groups of students involved in community performances and soloists traveling for events.

“I believe that my students need to know the importance of sharing their talents and giving their time,” Gueniot said. “My classroom door is always open to visitors and, often times, our special needs students are brought in to enjoy the music.”

He added the American Legion award is important because the organization is important, working not only to support veterans, but also their communities.

“Band directing allowed me to spend my life involved in my two favorite activities, school and music,” Gueniot said. “I tell my kids that I joined band when I was 10 years old and I’m still in it.”

St. Charles Parish Hospital and Ochsner provide tips on stroke prevention and treatment

According to the American Stroke Association, someone in the United States has a stroke every 40 seconds. That translates into nearly 800,000 people each year. In addition, every four minutes, someone dies of a stroke.

Getting that message out has been a primary focus in May, as it is National Stroke Awareness Month. Continued education on warning signs of symptoms is vital to prevention of one of the leading causes of death and disability in the United States.

Gabriel Vidal, MD, vascular neurologist at the Ochsner Comprehensive Stroke Center, says the simplest way to help prevent a stroke is to take care of yourself and maintain a healthy lifestyle by eating well and exercising daily.

“Patients need to control the diseases that make them more likely to have a stroke, like high blood pressure, diabetes and high cholesterol,” Vidal explained. “It is also extremely important to also avoid smoking, drinking in excess and using illicit drugs.”

A stroke occurs when a blood vessel in the brain “clogs” up, depriving brain tissue of blood and nutrients it needs. The result is that thousands of brain cells begin to die almost immediately and that affects motor skills, coordination, speech and comprehension. It is extremely important that someone who is showing signs of stroke remembers the acronym F.A.S.T. to lower the risk of death or disability:

F is for face – is your face drooping?

A is for arms – can you lift both arms?

S is for speech – are you slurring your words?

T is for time, call 9-1-1 immediately because with a stroke, time is brain.

Symptoms include: sudden onset weakness and/or numbness in one side of the body, difficulty speaking or comprehending others, slurred speech, facial droop, difficulty with vision, imbalance or severe headache.

For those individuals suffering from a stroke, St. Charles Parish Hospital and Ochsner Health System offer a unique Telestroke Program, which joins experts from both facilities to consult immediately with Ochsner vascular neurologists 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year, using telemedicine equipment to determine the best treatment options for stroke patients. The Ochsner Telestroke Program includes more than 55 participating hospitals throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Since the Telestroke service began in 2010, nearly 400 patients have been treated via this technology. Treatment for stroke symptoms is often a race against the clock.

The National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke found that stroke patients who received tissue plasminogen activator (t-PA) within three hours of the beginning of stroke symptoms were more likely to recover from their stroke with little or no disability. Because of this partnership,

Ochsner’s Telestroke neurologists are able to see patients as they arrive at St. Charles Parish Hospital and they are able to evaluate and prescribe t-PA treatment more quickly. This timeliness has resulted in a Telestroke t-PA utilization rate more than four times the national average and a reduced complication rate.

“In addition to t-PA, this program has allowed us to immediately identify candidates who can be treated with a minimally invasive procedure called clot thrombectomy, allowing a trained specialist to remove the clot directly. This procedure has been shown to make a marked recovery in the most severely disabling types of stroke. New evidence indicates that treating individuals within 24 hours from the onset of their symptoms still have an increased opportunity for improvement. With the Telestroke process, quick identification and taking steps down this pathway very early are critical for the good outcomes this procedure can provide,” says Dr. Vidal.

“Telestroke through Ochsner allows our hospital to provide emergent services to patients in immediate need for intervention to provide optimal return to baseline neurological function,” explained Marc Labat, MD, Emergency Medicine, St. Charles Parish Hospital.

Ochsner is the only program within Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas listed in the U.S. News & World Report Best Hospitals ranking across four specialty categories, where it is number 38 in the nation for neurology and neurosurgery.
