Community college coming to St. Charles

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

Calling it United Way of St. Charles' "biggest, boldest initiative" in its 64-year history, Executive Director John Dias says they will provide a community college campus for St. Charles Parish.

"We're really humbled at the support given us," Dias said. "And we hope, as a nonprofit, that the community really sees the value in us taking this big step to help everybody in return."

The $3 million project includes the $2 million purchase of a strip mall in Boutte and $1 million for renovations, a cost that Dias said will be spread out over the term of the mortgage. Half of the 30,000-square-foot mall, which was space formerly occupied by the Boutte Bingo Hall, will be dedicated to the college. The neighboring business tenants will remain.

The 3.9-acre site at 13143 Highway 90 includes parking for 300 vehicles.

After operating the bingo hall for 31-1/2 years, owner John Landry said it's bittersweet for he and his wife, Juanita, to leave the business and area. They have returned to his wife's hometown of River Ridge.

St. Rose woman goes public with horrifying story

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor

After nearly three years of silence, the St. Rose woman identified as the rape victim pushed out of a moving vehicle on the Crescent City Connection in New Orleans has gone public.

"I need women to know they're not alone," said Trelva Wells. "It could happen to anyone."

With Dave Turner sentenced to 15 years in prison in Orleans Parish, Wells is willing to speak out for herself and fellow victims of domestic violence.

On Feb. 2, 2016, she recounted how Turner showed up at her mother's house unannounced and attacked her.

John Wingrove had just dropped his line at his favorite bass fishing spot in Lac Des Allemands Sunday morning when he and his friend, Jesse Bates, heard someone yelling for help. They couldn't believe their eyes when they looked toward the shore.

"The guy and little girl were standing on a log in the water," Wingrove said. "They told me their boat sunk Saturday and they had stayed there all night long." In his more than 20 years of frequenting the spot, it was the first time he'd seen anything like this.

It was Kerry Schexnayder and his 7-year-old daughter, Rylie, who were clinging to the log and covered in mosquito bites.

Shell Norco celebrates its ‘secret roux’ for 90th

Anna Thibodeaux Managing Editor
annat@heraldguide.com

Celebrating its 90th anniversary, General Manager Brett Woltjen reflects on the Shell Norco Manufacturing Complex’s achievements in the global oil giant’s success.

“The secret roux in all this is the people here and their commitment and capabilities,” Woltjen said. “That’s what makes this place special. In terms of being a plant manager, who wouldn’t want that deal, right? To have a site and have the opportunity to lead people like that ... this has been an absolute highlight of my career to come here and provide leadership for this site, and be part of the history of this place.”

Pointing to the photographs of the site’s general managers in the hallway, Woltjen called it an honor to have his photo there, too.

Shell’s 1,000-acre complex and the community of Norco share an intimate history.

A maze of silver and white plant pipelines woven into the community itself is testimony to the area’s symbiotic relationship with industry petrochemical giants like Shell in the River Region.

Destrehan woman lives out dream on Family Feud

Grew up watching the show with siblings, got to compete alongside them

Ryan Arena Editor

Destrehan’s Karen Vicknair Richoux fondly recalled waking up on Sunday mornings as she grew up, playing cards with her dad and her siblings, watching the Saints play football and also indulging in one of her family’s not-so-guilty pleasures: watching a few rounds of Family Feud.

“We love games,” Richoux said. “That’s just how we’ve always been in our family. We still watch it today.”

They’ve had a bit more reason to recently, and that goes for their extended family and friends as well. Richoux and her two sisters are no longer just fans of

34-year-old dreamed for son to go to college, family attempts to make that reality

Ryan Arena Editor

The sudden passing of David Weber Jr. at the age of 34 came as difficult a blow as one could imagine to the Destrehan High alumnus’ family and friends. But just days after his death on Oct. 2, they vowed to honor his legacy in the best way they knew how.

His sister, Candace Weber Burnett, has established fundraising efforts toward a future college scholarship for her brother’s 11-year-old son, Matthias, who David dreamed would one day have the kind of opportunity he did not.

“We really wanted to do this in honor of his name and for his son, and I can think of no better way to honor him than to take care of Matthias,” said Burnett, the boy’s godmother. “I know it would be a dream come true for David to see his son have the chance to go to college. He never went to college himself, and I think like any parent, you dream for your child to do things you weren’t able to do.”

Hundreds to reenact largest slave rebellion in U.S. history

annat@heraldguide.com

Hundreds are planned to march through St. Charles Parish in the reenactment of the German Coast Uprising of 1811, the largest rebellion of enslaved people in U.S. history.

The reenactment is a community-engaged artist performance and film production that, on Nov. 8 - 9, will reimagine the uprising. They will march for 26 miles over two days.

“We will animate a suppressed history of people with an audacious plan to organize and seize Orleans Territory, to fight not just for their own emancipation, but to end slavery,” said artist Dread Scott. “It is a project about freedom.”

Scott envisioned and organized the event, which will be documented by filmmaker John Akomfrah.

The march will begin in St. John Parish, go through parts of St. Charles Parish into New Orleans, and conclude at Congo Square.

“You can’t understand America if you don’t understand slavery. And you can’t understand slavery if you don’t understand slave revolts.”
— Dread Scott

“The first significant research on the rebellion, states, ‘This ‘light infantry’ of Africans and some native people had swelled to many times its initial size. They cut across the plantation of Widow Jean Barre Trepagnier and Francois Delhomme (the former encompassing what is now the town of Montz, La., about 30 miles above New Orleans).” Scott said.

The revolt occurred Jan. 8 – 10, 1811 on the east bank of the Mississippi River in what is now St. John the Baptist, St. Charles and Jefferson parishes. An estimated 200 to 500 slaves, armed mostly with hand tools, participated in the march where they reportedly burned five plantation houses, several sugar houses and crops. A militia was formed that confronted them, resulting in interrogating, executing and decapitating slaves who were captured.

“The 1811 revolt is one of the most significant events in U.S. history,” Scott said. “You can’t understand America if you don’t understand slavery. And you can’t understand slavery if you don’t understand slave revolts. This was the largest rebellion of enslaved people in U.S. history. And it is a real, ‘What if?’ moment.

“What if it succeeded in establishing an African republic on what was then Orleans Territory? And how people think of the past has everything to do with how they think of the present and what they can imagine for the future.”

Reenactors will dress in period clothing and march for two days along the route.

“The reenactment will be an impressive and startling sight with hundreds of black reenactors, many on horses, flags flying, in 19th-century French colonial garments, singing in Creole and English to African drumming,” he said.

Because there was limited fighting in the revolt, much of the event will be a procession with occasional skirmishes, Scott said.

“Charles Deslondes, Gilbert, Quamana, Jeessamine and Marie Rose, some of the leaders of the 1811 uprising, will be alongside the many enslaved people who were part of the revolt,” he said.

At Congo Square, a location instrumental for preserving African culture in America, there will be a celebration – “transforming the violent suppression of the freedom fighters into a celebration of their achievement,” Scott said.

He added, “The Slave Rebellion Reenactment will continue the original rebels’ vision of emancipation that is embodied throughout the performance and will open the possibility for participants and audience members to imagine freedom.”

German Coast uprising of 1811

- » A revolt of black slaves erupts in parts of the Territory of Orleans on the east bank of the Mississippi River in what is now St. John the Baptist, St. Charles and Jefferson parishes on Jan. 8 – 10, 1811.
- » Two white men were killed and 95 black people killed in the insurgency.
- » The march began with 64 to 125 enslaved men from sugar plantations in and near present-day LaPlace on the German Coast toward New Orleans. An estimated 200 to 500 slaves joined the march along the way.

10-year-old speechless after father’s surprise visit

Father had been on duty in Japan

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Ten-year-old Peyton Spurgeon was speechless after getting to see his father for the first time in months.

The Lakewood Elementary student thought his father, Jed, was still deployed for military duty in Japan—and that was by design, as he wanted to surprise his son — and did he ever, along with help from his wife, Laura, and the teachers and administrators of Lakewood, who helped organize a “Homecoming” for Peyton to be surprised by his father’s early return home.

“He actually knew when I was coming home — at first,” Jed explained. “But while I was over in Japan, I knew people do those little homecomings. My wife and I talked about it and she

COLLEGE from 1A

“The people have been so great in supporting our business,” Landry said. “But we were ready to move on to something different.”

Murray Architects is designing the project at no cost to the United Way of St. Charles.

The bingo hall will be renovated into the River Parish Community College and should be open by fall of next year. The college will be a part of the Louisiana Technical College System and open to all students.

— John Dias

“There’s a whole circle with a community college that feeds better trained workers into industry,” Dias said.

After assessing 16 sites, Dias said the Boutte location stood out by being on a major thoroughfare (Highway 90), while offering high visibility from the highway and ample parking. The location also includes tenants to defray the project cost and is a mile from I-310 for easy access to college traffic.

“We started thinking initially about the underemployed person and providing for their families, but this great thing allows us to help the middle-class person who works in industry and their child at college age,” Dias said. “I think that in years to come there will be individuals and families whose entire lives have been shaped by the fact that they were able to get an education that got them a job that allowed them to support their families.”

Giving back was a strong theme in UW’s efforts with this project. While other United Ways in the nation have shown little to no growth, the United Way of St. Charles has grown by 60 percent, which Dias described as phenomenal.

“That led us to this premise that our community has supported this UW in a big, bold, strong way,” he said. “We felt UW owed the community a big, bold, strong statement of action back.”

Nearly four years ago, Dias said UW’s Million Dollar Idea Committee was created and led by Dow’s Brian Eiler. The committee was charged with answering one question: “If the UW invested $1 million, what would it do?”

The committee’s response was an idea with education weighted toward employment, and the community college is a perfect fit.

“We don’t spend a lot of time looking at what other United Ways do,” Dias said. “We ask our community what it needs.”

US politicians have failed to act on pro-life gun law to protect the innocent

Every time a mass shooting takes place, we hear politicians say they are going to address the problem, but nothing happens. A poll conducted after the massacre at a Florida high school shows that most Americans think Congress and President Trump are not doing enough to stop these shootings. Seventy-five percent of those surveyed faulted Congress for its inaction, while 62 percent blamed Trump, according to an ABC News/Washington Post poll.

BY WILMER L. TODD

Why are they afraid to do what most Americans want them to do? Because we no longer have spiritual, pro-life leaders, who value people over guns. It is more important to listen to the voices and money of the NRA than to respect the will of the people. So we will continue to have the highest mass shooting rate of any civilized country in the world. Most of us grew up in a culture that glorifies guns. I used to watch westerns on television like “Gunsmoke,” “Have gun will Travel,” and movies with John Wayne, Steve McQueen settling scores with a gunfight. Many Americans sense their identity, character, capabilities and strengths from being exposed to this type of violence. Some Americans believe the myth that we are a collection of rugged pioneering individuals, forever exploring new frontiers and the dangers and challenges they present. Guns, in this context, are an extension of that myth. Yet, this is not who we are. We are a community of diverse individuals who are interdependent on each other for our very survival. The USA is about 4.4 percent of the world population, yet our homes contain more than half of the privately held weapons in the world. A Gallop Poll survey showed that only 30 percent of Americans own guns. Yet, there are more privately held weapons in America than people.

Analysis: Rural parishes represent hurdle in governor’s race

Several rural parishes that supported Gov. John Bel Edwards in 2015 are now solidly in the corner of GOP challenger Eddie Rispone, or are at least leaning his way, creating what could become a critical roadblock for the incumbent’s re-election campaign. In the 2015 primary, Edwards managed to win the most primary votes in 23 rural parishes that former U.S. Sen. Mary Landrieu lost in 2014. While black voters were a driving force in his memorable election, it was also the country vote that helped Edwards cross the finish line.

BY JEREMY ALFORD

After the recent primary vote, Rispone has either won or turned competitive 11 of those rural parishes, gathering a total of 116,000 votes to Edwards’ 156,000. Rispone flipped five outright, including the parishes of Beauregard, Jefferson Davis, Livingston, Union and Webster. He lost another by less than 100 votes (Allen) and another five by less than 1,000 votes (Ascension, Catahoula, Evangeline, Jackson and St. Mary). At this point, however, Rispone has merely made this segment of the runoff competitive. He’s down by 40,000 votes in these 23 rural parishes. Moreover, Edwards won Calcasieu, Tangipahoa and Rapides by more than 6,000 votes each, and enjoyed a more than 11,000 vote lead in Ouachita.

What’s not factored in here is where the votes of Congressman Ralph Abraham, the race’s third-place finisher from north Louisiana, will go, although it doesn’t take much imagination to see many of them landing at Rispone’s feet. While every prognosticator around will tell you that Edwards has to increase black turnout in the runoff, these numbers from rural parishes show he has other problems as well. The governor has got to go into these rural parishes and grab the totals he pulled down in 2015. That’s no easy task along the countryside, where folks have to “drive into town” to vote. Then again, Edwards remembers those back country roads well. (His favorite XM station is Willie’s Roadhouse.) The real question is whether voters there will remember him.

Online Alcohol Sales Concern of Republican and Democrat Attorneys General

A bipartisan coalition of 46 state and territory Attorneys General – led by Louisiana Attorney General Jeff Landry and Maine Attorney General Aaron Frey – called on Facebook, Craigslist, and eBay to take proactive measures against alcohol sales on their platforms which frequently violate state laws and could pose health risks. “As we have seen recently with vaping and opioids, adolescents are finding new ways to purchase contraband online,” said Landry. “These widely-used online platforms have a responsibility to implement meaningful systems and programs that proactively address this problem and keep our children safe.” In letters to the online platforms, the Attorneys General argue that “everyone has an ethical and moral responsibility to protect consumers, especially those who are most vulnerable to fraud.” They note that the 21st Amendment invests the right to regulate the sale of alcohol to each state and point out concerns that unlicensed, unregulated, and untaxed alcohol sales are taking place on digital platforms. “The black-market products sold on these platforms may be counterfeit or tainted, sometimes with harmful health effects,” warned General Landry. “So together – Republican and Democrat – we want to solve this problem and make our jurisdictions safer places to live, work, and raise families.” The Attorneys General ask Facebook, Craigslist and eBay to review the current content posted to the companies’ websites and remove any illegal postings for the sales and/or transfer of alcohol products. They also ask the platforms to work to develop and deploy programming to block and prevent their platform users from violating state law by posting content for the sale and distribution of alcohol products on their websites.

BY JEFF LANDRY

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE from 1A

“When I walked out my door I got hit and fell backwards,” she said. “When I was able to open my eyes, he was standing over me and said, ‘You made my life a living hell. I’m going to make your life a living hell.’ He raped me. He choked me. The man did me in at my house. I gave a good fight until I couldn’t fight anymore.”

Turner overpowered her and flung her into his car, Wells said.

“At a certain point, when we went on the bridge, I knew he was taking me to this house and no one would see me again,” she said. “I reached down and got the pepper spray and sprayed him with it. I just wanted to get him to stop the car. That’s not what happened. He rolled down the windows, tried to get the pepper spray out my hand. I wouldn’t let off on it. We started coughing and choking at the same time.

“I don’t know how he did it, but he opened that door and pushed me out the car and that’s all I remember.”

Wells was discovered near the Loyola exit of the bridge. She awoke in the hospital surrounded by family and friends.

Turner was found guilty last year of attempted manslaughter and simple kidnapping by an Orleans Parish jury and sentenced to 15 years in prison. In St. Charles Parish, he faces charges of attempted first-degree murder and rape.

Turner was Wells’ finance’ and they have a son together.

“After my son was born, he became an entirely different person,” she said of Turner’s escalating jealousy over the child. “He called him ‘That baby,’ and we started arguing more than we ever did. After a while, he hit me and I left. I called him and said it was over.”

But it was apparently far from over when she learned Turner had a restraining order placed on her alleging she was harmful to their son, she said. However, a judge restored custody, placing the child in her care Monday through Thursday and to Turner, Friday through Sunday.

Soon after, Turner attacked Wells in St. Rose and denied doing it,although he was filmed by camera on the bridge, she said.

Last year, after their son repeatedly asked about his father, she brought him to the courtroom to see Turner for the last time before he went to prison. It also represented closure for Wells.

But, during this time, she also recounted receiving numerous emails and messages from women describing their own experiences of domestic violence. Wells said it took time for her to face her trauma, but she was overwhelmed by how many women had reached out to her.

“It’s almost like a silent killer,” she said. “People don’t talk about it, but it happens. It’s not a happy home and I don’t think we should be quiet about this anymore. Had I known more about this I might have seen the anger signs, and no one talked about it – it shouldn’t be that way.”

Although Wells struggled with these emotions, too, she concluded no one should be blamed for something they can’t control.

And there were so many heartbreaking stories from fellow victims, she said. Until her attack, she didn’t realize how prevalent the problem was and now these victims were confiding in her.

“There are too many women telling the same story,” she said. “We need to be making this public and maybe it won’t happen as much if we make this a big deal. It’s not fair.”

Wells organized a fundraiser Oct. 6 in Kenner to share her story with the public, as well as raise money for the St. Charles Parish Sheriff’s Office’s Crime Victims Assistance department, which helped pay her medical bills. A “Celebration of Life” party followed the event for fellow survivors of domestic abuse.

Now, as she recalls being in court and seeing Turner staring at her with no emotion, she has one lingering question about what happened to her.

“If I had the chance to talk to him, it’d be just to tell me why ... help me to understand,” she said. “The problem is that’s a question I will never get the answer to, but I want to know why.”

RESCUE from 1A

As Wingrove and Bates, both of LaPlace, rescued them, a worried Schexnayder told them his brother was still in the marsh. An hour later, they found Dustin, 38 years old, who was mentally disabled from an earlier accident, but he was in good condition.

“Thank God that was my little spot and I go there every Sunday morning,” Wingrove said. “That morning, we saved some lives.”

The three who were rescued had gone fishing the day earlier on Saturday (Oct. 12) on the lake. As they readied to leave around 4 p.m., Schexnayder told his girlfriend, Leah Marie Labit of Destrehan, a large wave hit.

“Everything went so fast,” she recounted of his details. “The boat started going down. He was trying to hold on to our daughter and his brother, but he had to let go of Dustin. It took them swimming three to four miles until they finally reached the marsh.”

Labit said he called out for his brother a couple of times, but thought the worst when he got no reply.

By then, he had placed Rylie on a high cypress branch, to be safe in case “anything attacked them. He could hear the gators all night. He felt it in his chest they were so loud.”

Soon came the darkness, and the two were forced to spend the night in the marsh.

“He had her in his arms the whole entire time,” Labit said.

During this time, they had heard a boat nearby, but Schexnayder’s attempts to get their attention, which included yelling for help and using his daughter’s pink-and-blue lighted Keds, did not work.

It wasn’t until 7:30 a.m. Sunday that Wingrove and Bates happened along and rescued them.

They were all taken to the Des Allemands boat launch and met by sheriff’s deputies, EMTs and representatives from the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries.

“Aside from Dustin receiving fluids and hundreds of bug bites, they are overall healthy,” Labit said. “It’s amazing. It’s the most miraculous thing I’ve ever heard.”

Describing her daughter as one of the toughest people she’s ever known, Labit said Rylie talked about their mishap like they’d gone camping and was just happy that everyone was alive.

“That girl is beyond fearless,” she said.

Born at three pounds, Rylie is a tomboy who has grown up sturdy and continually begs her dad to go fishing.

“That was literally the most traumatic thing that’s ever happened to him,” Labit recalled of Schexnayder. “He just sat and sobbed talking about having to choose between his daughter and his brother, saying, “That whole night, I thought he was dead and it was my fault.”

But Labit added, “That kind of stuff doesn’t happen everyday ... especially when you have a happy ending.”

Go fish

- » Oct. 12: Kerry Schexnayder, his 7-year-old daughter, Rylie, and brother, Dustin, leave the boat launch in Hahnville to fish in Lac Des Allemands.
- » 4 p.m. the same day: Their boat is overtopped by a large wave and sinks, leaving all three in the marsh.
- » 7:30 a.m.: The three are rescued by two LaPlace fishermen.

SHELL from 2A

In 1916, the New Orleans Refining Company purchased 366 acres of sugar cane fields from the Goodhope Plantation in Louisiana to establish a marine petroleum supply terminal. Three years later, construction began on a refinery to process heavy Mexican crude. On May 8, 1920, the first processing unit began operations. As the industry grew in the post-WWI era, so did the community. In 1925, residents adopted the initials of the New Orleans Refining Company (NORCO) as the name of its town.

“We’ve been here 90 years and our goal is to stay another 90.”
— Brett Woltjen

The Shell Petroleum Corporation, forerunner of Shell Oil Company, acquired the Norco Refinery in 1929. In 1955, a nearby chemical plant was added, significantly enhancing the overall production and business scope of the refinery. In 1998, a merger with Texaco and Saudi Aramco made the refining and chemical business officially separate. Shell Norco Refining Company became a division of Motiva Enterprises. In 2002, Texaco exited the merger and Motiva Enterprises became a 50/50 joint venture between Shell and Saudi Aramco. Until May 2017, the chemical plant was owned and operated by Shell Chemicals, while the refinery was owned and operated by Motiva Enterprises LLC. However, following the division of Motiva’s assets, the site became one, Shell-owned facility. Norco residents have recounted the interrelationship with Shell in past years. Since the inception of Shell Norco endowment foundation and community funds in 2001, some $2,555,062 have been awarded to the community. Grant recipients range from local non-profits to organizations focused on business development, job creation, workforce skills training and improving the quality of life in the Norco community. On Saturday, Shell Norco rewarded the community by giving away $20 gas cards and providing free carwashes. On Wednesday, Shell Norco employees were treated to a barbecue lunch and received 90th anniversary gifts. “We’re excited about being part of this community,” Woltjen said. “We have multi-generations of employees that have worked here and identify with the rich history of this plant.” Shell Norco employs 1,100 people and averages 1,000 contractors on the site, which Woltjen said are good paying jobs that provide substantial economic stimulus for the area. “We’ve been here 90 years and our goal is to stay another 90,” Woltjen said. “The plant that is here is not the same plant that was here 90 years ago. We’ve been looking at assets that we have and figuring out how we can improve them in ‘re-lifeing’ them and setting ourselves up for that future.” Woltjen said Shell Norco has spent at least $500 million in the last two years to update equipment like the catalytic cracker or what he called “the heart of the refinery.” Originally from St. Louis, Mi., Woltjen said coming to Norco nearly four years ago has changed his life for the better. “The people here are absolutely what makes this place special,” he said. “It’s just been fantastic to get to come here, and join this team here and provide a little bit of leadership and be here during a pretty special time setting us up for the future.”

FAMILY FEUD from 2A

the show: they're contestants, along with two of Richoux's nieces.

The five women appeared on several episodes of Family Feud over the past two weeks. Along with Richoux were her sisters Angela Melancon Solomon and Cindy DeLacerda, while two of Angela's daughters, Anne Stubbs and Abby Link, joined them. Stubbs and Link share that love of game shows passed down from their mother, so they were natural choices, said Richoux.

"Growing up, we'd all talk about how we wanted to go on Family Feud," Richoux said. "It's something we enjoyed together. And, I mean, it's something you've always wanted, but never, ever knew you'd get it. When it came true ... we're still like, 'Did it really happen?'"

Incidentally, Family Feud was not the original target for Richoux. This all started when she learned that Wheel of Fortune would be holding auditions in New Orleans. She brought Angela along with her and the two auditioned, but this time didn't get a call back.

Well, at least not a call from the Wheel crew.

"We had so much fun. We had a blast. We never thought it would happen ... well, it did. It was a dream come true."
— Karen Vicknair Richoux

"Cindy called and says, 'I told y'all I wanted to go on Family Feud! So why can't we do that?'" Richoux said. "I looked into it and it happened to be in Alabama. And for most of us, we're kind of spread out living in different areas now, and that actually turned out to be kind of a central location for us to meet."

Thousands auditioned. The Vicknairs were among those chosen to travel to Los Angeles and have a second audition. It went well: Richoux received a postcard on Oct. 12 of 2018. Just over a year later, on Oct. 16 of this year, their Feud debut landed on the air.

Stubbs is the Louisiana Catfish Festival Queen XXII and Louisiana Yambilee Festival Queen LIII, while Link is the 2004 Miss St. Charles Parish Festival Queen, "which makes for good television," Richoux said.

They prepared by watching YouTube videos of prior shows and setting up their best "lineup" to take on the show's famous tasks, based on the skillset of each woman.

"So, Abby's the youngest, she's quick on the draw ... she needs to be in that fourth spot," Richoux said with a laugh.

Their preparation was well worth it, seemingly. The family hit their first day of live competition and made it count, winning the game and earning $20,000 along with it.

"As much as you want the show to be entertaining, you also want to win. We played two games our first day there, winning big on the second game but falling short on Fast Money," Richoux said. "The adrenaline is pumping so on commercial breaks they bring you a little cup of water to help wet your whistle and the producers come and give you a pep talk to try and calm your nerves."

She called Steve Harvey quick witted and personable, and noted he and the show's cast and crew made the Vicknairs feel like family.

"(Harvey) has a comeback to everything you say in the game," Richoux said. "The cast and crew are terrific. They had some fun with us. They told Abby she'd be the only Catfish Queen ever to appear on the show."

The tapings happened back in April, and following that was the anticipation of the shows airing, which built to an apex in October.

"We had butterflies that Wednesday it aired. We didn't remember the questions or answers we gave," Richoux said.

One of the best parts has been sharing the experience with family and friends, who often seem almost as excited as the five contestants.

"Our Facebook and texts are blowing up, congratulating us," Richoux said. "Some of them are so, so happy, like they're up there with us. Everyone knows everyone here in South Louisiana, and it's really been great."

One other aspect of it all she's proud of: her father passed away 30 years ago, so for the sisters, it was something of a means to honor the man they shared so many Family Feud viewings with.

"When I saw the Vicknair name behind me on the stage, it was emotional for me," she said. "We are honored to have represented our dad and the Vicknair name on Family Feud."

"We had so much fun. We had a blast. We never thought it would happen ... well, it did. It was a dream come true."

Family Feud

- » Family Feud first aired in July of 1976 and has aired on network television and/or syndication ever since.
- » Originally hosted by Richard Dawson, the show has had many well-known hosts over the years, including current host Steve Harvey, who has held the role since 2010.
- » In 2013, TV Guide ranked Family Feud third in its list of the 60 greatest game shows of all time.

SCHOLARSHIP from 2A

Burnett has started the effort with a GoFundMe page (titled Matthias' Scholarship Fund) and that alone has raised almost $2,500 in its first two weeks online. The goal is to raise $5,000 and place it into an account, then add to it each year until Matthias turns 18 and goes on to college, with the funds designated specifically for the purpose of tuition and necessary supplies.

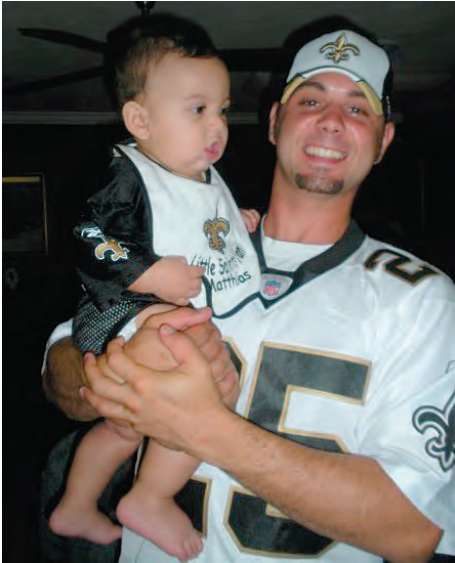

She said the outpouring of support from the community has been an emotional lift in what's been a difficult time for all who loved Weber.

His death came as result of a brain hemorrhage. He was comatose for two days, before it was determined that there was no path to recovery. He died painlessly, Burnett said, and was surrounded by family.

"I think he died in a way ... I think most people would like to be comforted by family, surrounded by love," she said.

Naturally, it came as a terrible blow.

One of Weber's favorite photos of he and his fellow Saints fan, son Matthias.

"(Weber) had so many goals and so many dreams. I want his son to know how special a person he was and how much he loved him."
— Candace Burnett

"My parents are obviously both devastated," she said. "My younger brothers both really looked up to him, as he was the big brother, the oldest among us. We're all looking at life differently and taking nothing for granted. I know it brought us closer as a family.

"We've all been so comforted at the outpouring of love, support and prayer we've received. It shows the heart of this community and how people here come together as one ... they've lifted our hearts so much."

Weber was raised in the Norco and Destrehan communities, graduating from Destrehan High in 2005. He was outgoing and charismatic, Burnett said, and loved to make others laugh.

He also loved to help others, especially children. Described as an athlete at heart, Weber coached youth sports regularly, and his dream was to progress on the coaching level and become a youth mentor.

"He wanted to teach them lessons, things he'd learned throughout his life, and keep them focused on the right path," Burnett said.

She described him as someone of great faith and as an eternal optimist.

"He struggled like anyone else, but he always had a lot of hope and optimism in his life," Burnett said. "He had so many goals and so many dreams. I want his son to know how special a person he was and how much he loved him."

HOMECOMING from 6A

approached (Lakewood) with the idea. From there, they took care of everything ... we ended up telling my son we'd pushed back the date and got ready."

"I think he was in complete shock ... I thought it was pretty awesome."

— Jed Spurgeon

As it turned out, his teachers had the perfect way to sneak Jed into Peyton's classroom without him knowing: they had him dress in costume as the Lakewood Elementary Gator mascot.

At first, Jed thought he'd been instantly caught.

"I walked in and I thought my son saw me," Jed said. "I was a little hesitant to be looking in his direction, but he looked right at me. They were asking the kids who they thought was under the mask, then they kind of focused on Peyton and said 'Who do YOU think it is?' They did the countdown and I took the mask off."

Peyton had not identified his father after all. He was taken aback.

"I think he was in complete shock," Jed said. "He had no idea I'd even be in the area yet, let alone at the school. I thought it was pretty awesome. I was really anticipating it on my end, but it hit

Jed Spurgeon and son Peyton after the "homecoming" surprise.

Peyton's mother, Laura, was there herself, staying out of Peyton's view.

"Oh wow, I was hiding in the principal's office crying my eyes out," Laura said of the moment. "After the big reveal I was able to come out and surprise him."

As an active duty military sergeant, Jed does have to periodically travel for periods of time away from his family. Two years ago was the last such occasion, when he spent time in Germany. He said this time seemed tougher, perhaps because Peyton's a little older now.

"This one felt longer," Jed said. Laura said her son was definitely ready to see his dad again.

"The first few weeks, it wasn't a big deal, but as time went on it was getting hard on him," she said. "I miss my dad, I want my dad to come home. He was extra bummed because he thought his dad would miss Halloween."

After the reveal, Jed spent some time answering student questions about military life.

"Do you get to jump out of planes?"

Things like that," Jed said with a chuckle.

Both parents agreed Lakewood went above and beyond to create a truly memorable moment for their family.

"They were nothing but awesome about this whole thing," said Laura. "Even before this, helping him keep his mind off (Jed) being gone, and then to do this ... they've been planning this since about mid-August and it was so great of them."

Destrehan faces tough road test at Thibodaux, eyes turnaround

Wildcats have lost 3 of last 4 games

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

After losing three of four games, Destrehan is in the unfamiliar spot of seeking answers headed into the final three weeks of the regular season.

The Wildcats (4-3, 1-2) travel to Thibodaux (6-1, 2-1) in a key District 7-5A matchup for both teams. Thibodaux is ranked in the top 10 in Class 5A power points, so a victory for Destrehan would go a long way toward solidifying a playoff spot and positioning. It's

“We could be 6-1 as easily as we’re 4-3, but we didn’t get it done. We have to get better.”

— Destrehan coach Stephen Robicheaux

the first of three tough district battles for the Wildcats, who face Central Lafourche and rival Hahnville over the season's final two weeks.

While this bump in the road hasn't been a welcome one for the Wildcats, there are still plenty of reasons for optimism. The losses have come during a period where Destrehan has been hindered by a few key injuries, particularly at quarterback, and the hope is the team will get closer to 100 percent as the regular season comes to a conclusion. DHS coach Stephen Robicheaux said that isn't something his team can control, but that there's plenty it can control in an effort to get back to the program's winning ways.

“We’ve had our chances in all three games,” said Robicheaux.

“Particularly two of those games, I think we had a good chance to win. We’ve fought back but we aren’t getting the job done. The kids here know this isn’t a bad team. We could be 6-1 just as easily as we’re 4-3, but we didn’t get it done. We have to get better and make up the difference.”

To corral Thibodaux, stopping Luke Alleman is the biggest key. The standout quarterback missed last season with injury and Thibodaux fell targets. Darwin Davis Jr., Kyren Lacy, Maurquel Price and Tyren Young can all make the big play.

“They really try to get the ball to Davis, and for a reason,” Robicheaux said. “He catches a lot of balls for them. (Lacy) makes some impressive plays. All of those guys are really dangerous.”

When Thibodaux runs, it's Rimond Thompson and Ferronte Miller who can hurt a defense. But the strength of this team is its passing game, and it leans on it for the majority of games.

“They want to throw it around,” Robicheaux said. “We have to not let them make the big play ... as they say, bleed slow if you’ve got to. The hope is you can force some turnovers.”

Thibodaux's been in several shootouts this season. In the wake of Destrehan's 14-13 loss to East St. John, the Wildcats will have to be sharper on the offensive side of the ball if that kind of game breaks out.

Senior starting quarterback Damarius Jackson has been limited by an ankle injury and has been splitting time with freshman Jai Eugene Jr. Robicheaux said both passers will play on Friday, but is also optimistic that Jackson will be closer to 100 percent. Kicker Will Bryant also missed last week's game with injury, and his absence hurt in a one point loss. Robicheaux said Bryant is likely to return this week.

Destrehan's Kyle Edwards has been strong in the running game.

Destrehan safety Tyler Morton will look to force another turnover this Friday.

EAST ST. JOHN 14, DESTREHAN 13 - The Wildcats fell at home on Friday night to East St. John in a defensive battle, marking the first time since 2012 that East St. John secured a win over Destrehan prior to Friday night.

DHS had a chance to win with the ball at the end of the night, but East St. John's defense stepped up to force an incompleteness and a sack on the final two plays of the night, ending the game.

Destrehan's Kyle Edwards

rushed for 171 yards in the game, while Damarius Jackson connected with Quincy Brown on a touchdown pass. Sean Shelby and Dontae Fleming combined for an ESJ touchdown, while Calvin Gardner ran in another.

Tigers host Braves for homecoming

Hahnville looking to see improved play from defense on Friday night

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

It’s a festive mood around Hahnville High School these days.

The Tigers are perfect thus far this season at 7-0. They celebrate their homecoming Friday night, with H.L. Bourgeois (1-6, 0-4) headed to Tiger Stadium as guest and opposition. Hahnville would rank as a top two seed were the playoffs to start today.

The students are spirited, the players and coaches are proud, and when it comes to a place with a winning tradition like Hahnville, the spoils of winning lends to the kind of atmosphere few places can match.

“Our student body, I can’t say enough about them,” said Hahnville coach Nick Saltaformaggio. “You see it every Friday night, their energy, their spirit. Our band, there’s not enough in my vocabulary to voice the accolades they deserve, they’re instrumental in our success. Our cheer, flag and dance teams, our pep squad ... it’s a special place.”

“We have to go back and find our identity on the defensive side of the ball.”

But being the coach of a team with state championship aspirations doesn’t lend much in the way of an ability to stop and smell the roses. And while Hahnville is unbeaten this deep into the season for the first time in his tenure as coach — and for the first time in several years for the program as a whole — Saltaformaggio said his Tigers need to address something critical before it costs them everything.

The Tigers’ defense, Saltaformaggio said, cannot continue on as it has for the past month.

Hahnville (7-0, 4-0) has allowed 27, 28, 0 and 30 points, respectively, over the past four weeks, the lone shutout coming at East St. John, with Terrebonne, Thibodaux and Central Lafourche all finding firm footing on the offensive side of the ball.

Early in the season, defense was the Tigers’ calling card. Lately, it’s been offense. To win a championship, Saltaformaggio says it’ll have to be both.

“We have to go back and find our identity on the defensive side of the ball,” said Saltaformaggio. “We haven’t been a good defensive football team over the past four weeks, aside from at East St. John. So I asked our kids, which is it? Is the anomaly East St. John? Or is it what happened to us last week? It’s my big concern right now. If we don’t figure this out, it’s gonna keep us out of the state championship game, because it’s gonna cost us big at some point.”

Saltaformaggio said the team’s offense and special teams have seen consistent improvement throughout the season, but the defense has fallen back from a dominating first few weeks that saw the Tigers first team defense allow just 13 offensive points.

“We’re being carried by our offense right now,” Saltaformaggio said. “The coin’s completely flipped from the start of the season. We’re not tackling well. We’re struggling with alignment, with getting lined up. We’re not aggressive and tenacious, and we need to be. Until we address that, we’re in a place where I can only hope we keep scoring like we’ve been scoring.”

It’s where the bulk of his focus will be against Bourgeois, which comes in on a four game losing streak. The Braves bested Ellender in Week 3, but have fallen to East St. John, Destrehan, Terrebonne and Central Lafourche.

HAHNVILLE 42, CENTRAL LAFOURCHE 30 - Darryle Evans’ 39-yard touchdown run in the final two minutes of play put to bed Hahnville’s seventh win of the season – and in a row – as the unbeaten Tigers survived a determined visitor in Central Lafourche, 42-30.

It was a monster night for Evans, who rushed for 234 yards and four touchdowns on 16 carries, time and time again answering Central Lafourche scores in the second half with touchdown runs of his own. He has tallied 919 rushing yards and 20 total touchdowns this season.

St. Charles Catholic High School educating the mind and the heart

St. Charles Catholic (SCC) High School believes in educating the mind - and the heart. As the educational and spiritual leader of the River Parishes, SCC strives to develop young men and women as faith-filled students. SCC believes it is important to form the whole child - to teach not only academics, arts, and athletics, but the importance of faith and service as well. SCC's goal is to prepare children for success in this world and beyond as future leaders and community servants.

"St. Charles Catholic High School is where faith is fostered, friendships are tempered, and a new family is woven," says Dr. Andrew J. St. Martin MD, Class of 1984.

SCC's success is evident in its higher-than-average ACT scores, graduation rates, and scholarship awards. SCC's college-preparatory curriculum offers a rigorous, challenging foundation where students have a plethora of resources to guide them to achieve their full potential.

SCC's curriculum is designed to challenge students with a customized, rigorous learning curriculum designed to fit their learning level. It offers five levels of courses to fit every student's academic needs, including Honors, Dual Enrollment and AP. Strong academic results open the door to success at the college level; and SCC prepares its students for college, careers and beyond.

SCC is blazing a technology trail with its Apple iPad and MacBook 1:1 Technology program, incorporate interactive Promethean boards in classrooms, and Digital Design, Multimedia and Code Design classes, giving students can earn up to 30 college credit hours via online classes in Math, Biology, English, Spanish and French.

SCC's athletic offerings include baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf, soccer, softball, swimming, tennis, track and field, and volleyball. The Gayle and Tom Benson and NFL Foundations and other donors recently donated money to build a new stadium for its winning football team.

SCC offers nearly 30 school clubs including cheerleading, academic games, art club, drumline, Mu Alpha Theta, National Honor Society, Student Council and the Starsteppers Dance Team.

In addition, SCC's students have earned more than 1500 college credit hours as part of its dual enrollment program in partnership with Southeastern Louisiana University (SLU). Students

Signs, symptoms and guidelines for your breast health

BY: SRIKANTH TAMMA, MD
ST. CHARLES PARISH HOSPITAL

As Breast Cancer Awareness Month comes to an end and the pink-everything slowly fades away, it's important to remember that year-round breast cancer prevention and detection should still stay top-of-mind. According to the American Cancer Society, about 1 in 8 U.S. women will develop invasive breast cancer over the course of her lifetime. In 2019, roughly 270,000 new cases of invasive breast cancer are expected to be diagnosed in women in the U.S.

While the numbers are intimidating, there is much one can do to ensure overall breast health. Knowing the signs and symptoms of how breast cancer manifests is an important step to early detection and treatment.

Signs and symptoms of breast cancer include:

- Swelling of all or part of a breast (even if no distinct lump is felt)
- Skin irritation or dimpling

- Breast or nipple pain
- Nipple retraction (turning inward)
- Redness, scaliness, or thickening of the nipple or breast skin
- Nipple discharge (other than breast milk)

Mammograms are important

Yearly screening mammograms should begin at age 40. Some of the newer guidelines recommend waiting until 45 or 50 years old, however the American College of Radiology and Society of Breast Imaging continue to recommend annual mammography beginning at age 40 to save the most lives. All women should get mammograms regardless of family history.

It is important to know if anyone in your family has ever had breast or ovarian cancer. If so, try to find out what age they were diagnosed, as this can impact your risk of developing a breast cancer. Discuss your family history with your doctor—they may recommend starting screenings earlier and/or more often.

You should feel empowered to make the best decisions about your health. Encourage your friends and family to get checked (and take your own advice). If you are experiencing any of the above signs and symptoms call and make an appointment with your physician today.

Dr. Srikanth Tamma earned his medical degree from Kasturba Medical College in Manipal, India in 2001. He completed internship and residency training from Wayne State University/ Sinai-Grace Hospital in Detroit, Michigan in 2007. He then completed his medical oncology fellowship at Ochsner Medical Center in 2009. He is board-certified in medical oncology and treats a wide variety of cancers and blood disorders. To schedule an appointment with him at Ochsner Health Center- Luling (1057 Paul Maillard Rd.), please call (985) 785-5771 or schedule online at www.ochsner.org.
