Heated debate over masks erupts at School Board meeting

Monique Roth Editor
moniquer@heraldguide.com

There was fiery debate last week at the St. Charles Parish School Board meeting when parents on both sides of the masking debate showed up ready to defend their side of the argument.

Tensions have been high recently on the matter in Facebook groups – including "UNmask our kids! St. Charles Parish" and "Support the St. Charles Parish School Board" – where two groups of parents have staunch, but opposing, views on whether or not St. Charles Parish Public Schools students should be required to wear face masks.

Although not on the board's meeting agenda, the mask discussion was added to the night's Residents brought signs to the School Board meeting to express their dissent over mask wearing.

Hahnville Fire station 32 dedicated in honor of firefighter who served parish for 52 years

Monique Roth Editor
moniquer@heraldguide.com

Fire Station 32 on Lincoln Street in Hahnville was recently dedicated in honor of longtime time firefighter Arthur Tregre Jr., and for good reasons - the Hahnville Volunteer Fire Department was founded in 1967 with Tregre as a founding member, and Tregre himself helped build the station on Lincoln Street.

After serving 52 years with the fire department, Tregre died in 2019 at the age of 86. He was also retired from St. Charles Parish government, a U.S. Marine veteran, honorary lifetime member of the Hahnville Volunteer Fire Department and a member of Our Lady of the Most Holy Rosary Catholic Church.

Many of Tregre’s family and friends were present at the dedication, including Dwayne LaGrange.

Third arrest made in fatal Hale Boggs Bridge hit and run

Monique Roth Editor
moniquer@heraldguide.com

Louisiana State Police Troop B announced last week that another arrest has been made in the investigation into the crash that claimed the life of 44-year-old Brady Ortego, and this time it is Pebbles Johnson, the mother of suspect Hunter Johnson.

Hunter, 22, was arrested and booked in March with vehicular homicide, driving under the influence, hit and run, reckless operation and obstruction of justice in connection with the death of Ortego. Hunter is accused of hitting four construction workers with his truck the night of Jan. 14 on the Hale Boggs Bridge. Ortego, 44, was sent over the side of the bridge and into the Mississippi River. He remains missing but is presumed dead.

In July, Hunter’s 73-year-old grandmother, Marie Sally Dufrene, was arrested and charged with obstruction of justice after helping her grandson flee the scene, State Police said.

According to State Police,

Pebbles Johnson

Hunter was injured in the crash and abandoned his vehicle on foot, leaving key evidence at the scene. State Police said that, after fleeing the scene, Hunter contacted Dufrene to pick him up.

Last week’s arrest of Pebbles marks the third arrest so far in the case.

“Troopers obtained additional evidence which revealed that Johnson’s 51-year-old mother, Pebbles Johnson, transported Hunter Mason Johnson from his grandmother’s residence to a hotel in Houma and assisted him in eluding capture,” a State Police press release stated. “Given the additional findings, troopers obtained an arrest warrant for Pebbles Johnson through the 29th Judicial District court charging her with Obstruction of Justice. On the evening of Aug. 17, 2021, Pebbles Johnson was booked into the Nelson Coleman Correctional Center in St. Charles Parish for the active warrant.”

New grants available for charities, small businesses providing COVID relief

Monique Roth Editor
moniquer@heraldguide.com

St. Charles Parish charities, faith-based organizations and small businesses can now apply for up to $25,000 in grants to support COVID-19 response and relief efforts in Louisiana through the Louisiana Nonprofit and Small Business Assistance Program.

The state-wide program was created by Act 410 of the 2021 Regular Session of the Louisiana Legislature. The Louisiana Department of Revenue is administering the $10 million grant program, and eligible nonprofits include churches and other faith-based organizations, public charities and groups with federal tax-exempt status, such as 501(c)(3) organizations.

Chassity McComack, executive director of the River Region Chamber of Commerce, said she encourages any of the applicable entities to look into eligibility for their organization.

“The Chamber understands firsthand the impact of COVID on our organization and community,” she said. “Our small businesses, nonprofits and faith-based organizations are imperative to the well-being in our communities. This aid is greatly needed to help those that continue to help make our region a great place to live and grow.”

What is interventional cardiology?

By Willie E. Robinson, III, M.D.

Place your hand over your chest. Do you feel that? It's your lifeline. Your heart beats about 2.5 billion times over the average lifetime. It pushes millions of gallons of blood carrying oxygen, fuel, hormones and a host of essential cells throughout your body. Heart health is important at every age.

Interventional Cardiology is an area of medicine that uses specialized imaging and other diagnostic techniques to evaluate the blood flow and pressure in coronary arteries and chambers of the heart. It is a subspecialty of cardiology, and it deals specifically with catheter-based and stenting treatment of heart and peripheral vascular disease. It is a non-surgical option that uses catheters and wires to repair damaged or weakened vessels, narrowed arteries, or other damaged structural parts of the heart.

Common Conditions

Coronary artery disease. This develops when the major blood vessels that supply your heart with blood, oxygen and nutrients become damaged or diseased. Cholesterol-containing deposits, also known as plaque, are usually to blame for this disease. The build up of plaque causes your coronary arteries to narrow. This decreases the blood flow to your heart. Eventually, you'll experience chest pain known as angina and shortness of breath. A complete blockage can cause a heart attack. This disease builds up over decades, and you may not notice a problem until you have a significant blockage or a heart attack. Focusing on a healthier lifestyle can make all the difference!

Heart valve disease. When one or more of the valves in your heart doesn't work properly, you may have heart valve disease. Your heart has four valves that help the blood flow in the right direction. If one or more of these valves doesn't open or close properly, the blood flow gets disrupted. Some people may not experience symptoms for years. Signs and symptoms may include:

- Abnormal sounds (heart murmurs)
- Fatigue and fainting
- Swelling of ankles or feet
- Shortness of breath
- Irregular heart beats

Peripheral vascular disease. This is a common circulatory problem in which the narrowed arteries reduce blood flow to your limbs, usually your legs. This can cause leg pain when walking. This disease is also a sign for a more widespread accumulation of fatty deposits or plaque. This disease is often treated by exercising and eating a healthier diet.

When to see a doctor

If you suspect you're having a heart attack, call 911 immediately or your local emergency number. If you do not have access to emergency medical services, have someone drive you to the nearest hospital.

If you have risk factors for coronary artery disease, such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol, tobacco use, diabetes or family history of heart disease,

COVID from 1A

John L. Ory in LaPlace. Shavor said her mother’s St. Rose household contracted COVID-19 in late July. Sparacello’s 15-year-old son was the first to be diagnosed, and later the virus spread to the three other siblings and Sparacello.

While everyone else has since recovered, Sparacello was hospitalized with a case that was unfortunately not as mild.

“While my siblings and I only got a few sniffles here and there, my mom was not so lucky,” Shavor said. “She ended up contracting COVID pneumonia, which resulted in her having to be put in the ICU.”

Shavor said her mother refused vaccination before her diagnosis, but that her thoughts on the matter changed once she became ill.

“My grandmother and I were the main members of our family trying to get my mom vaccinated,” Shavor said. “My family was pretty divided with half being vaccinated and the other half being on the fence. When my mom went into the hospital, they quickly changed their mind. Those who weren’t vaccinated, including my younger siblings who were old enough, soon got their first shot.”

Shavor said Sparacello had always been wary of doctors and medications.

“She said many times she wanted to wait until more people took it,” Shavor said. “She never gave a solid reason why she didn’t take it. In the hospital she was too weak to talk, but she would text. She asked my grandma if once she got out of the hospital she could get the shot. I think it was clear to her that she really should have taken it before then.”

Sparacello was eventually intubated during her hospital stay and died on Aug. 19.

“The thing I’ll miss most about my mom is her laugh,” Shavor said. “It was so unique. It filled every room she was in and it was super contagious. If Connie Sparacello enjoyed photography and taught in the St. Charles Parish Public School System for 15 years.

mom was laughing, the room was happy.”

Shavor’s message to people who are unsure of the vaccine or who are hesitant to wear a mask is clear.

“It’s not worth your life,” she said. “I get the reservations about the vaccine ... I get it. But not getting it puts you and everyone around you in more danger than necessary. What my family is going through right now ... this immense grief ... is preventable. If you don’t want to do it for you, do it for your son, your daughter, your mother, your father, your neighbor, your teacher and everyone you cross paths with.”

the fire station, and they started building that fire station the year I was born,” LaGrange said. “I was always at my grandfather’s house and I would see Mr. Arthur out there washing the trucks. He would bring me and some of my friends over and let us sit in the fire trucks ... we were so intrigued with the vehicles. He would let us ride our bicycles on the fire station property.”

LaGrange said there was something else that kept him and other neighborhood kids returning to the fire station day after day.

“They always had great snacks over there too,” he said laughing. “Those were some great times.”

LaGrange said Tregre became one of his role models. “He was always such a cordial person and someone who really dedicated himself to public service,” LaGrange said of Tregre. “He took the time to invest in me and he took the time to show this little kid a little bit of love.”

LaGrange said as an adult he would run across Tregre during his employment with the St. Charles Parish Sheriff’s Office.

“Arthur showed that public service was a good thing ... it just stuck with me and we stayed friends for years,” LaGrange said. “He really dedicated a great service to our area ... he’s truly missed.”

LaGrange was at the station dedication – as were St. Charles Parish Councilwomen La Sandra Darensbourg Gordon and Holly Fonseca.

“It was just an honor to be there and to see that this station was being dedicated to someone who gave so much to the community, and it meant a lot seeing all of his family show up and attend in his honor,” LaGrange said. “That was truly a great day for the Tregre family.”

Fonseca said she was honored to be invited to the station dedication.

“It is evident to me from today’s turnout and remarks made by his family, friends and colleagues that Mr. Tregre was very dedicated to serving the residents of our parish through his many years of volunteering in the fire department,” she said at the dedication. “Thank you to his family members for their support of his selfless dedication.”

All eligible small businesses must have 50 or fewer full-time or full-time equivalent employees.

Program organizers said grants will list of conversations after the School Board was contacted by numerous parents requesting the opportunity to speak.

Anne Moyer, who spoke for the side of people who want masks required, is the mother of two students at Hahnville High School. She said while she has always believed masks should be required, she made the decision to be more vocal about her opinion when she saw how many people were challenging the state’s mask mandate and trying to sway local school leaders to make them optional.

“I can’t let that go unanswered,” Moyer said. “I have faith in our School Board, but I’ve been surprised and somewhat appalled in this parish about the number of people who won’t get a vaccine ... I won’t take anything for granted. Everyone can be swayed by too many people, and sometimes the squeaky wheel gets the grease. I hope that the majority of parents feel the way I do. This is not about politics ... this is about health.”

Moyer said a handful of pro-mask parents showed up to the meeting.

“We knew what to expect going in ... that this was not an agenda topic and that only one of us would be allowed to speak,” she said, adding there were approximately 30 people on the anti-mask side who showed up. “The School Board was great, but the other side put the entire meeting in chaos. They all wanted to talk. It was just chaos.”

Moyer’s speech cited studies that proved the efficacy of masks and gave information about other school districts who had to suspend school for weeks after masks were not mandated and COVID-19 outbreaks occurred.

“There was some heckling, but I plowed through,” Moyer said.

Marla Faust, a Destrehan resident with three children, attended two meetings yesterday: the BESE meeting in Baton Rouge, as well as the St. Charles Parish School Board meeting. Her steadfast belief that masks should be optional in school led her to go to both gatherings.

“I know multiple people who have taken their kids out of the public school system because of these mandates,” she said. “We as a parents have a right as to what goes on our kids’ faces. To me that is discrimination – where’s the equality for the unmasked children? I was told that these are your options ... either send them in a mask or you take your kids out of public school. They’re just trying to get rid of us.”

Faust said while she hasn’t withdrawn her children from St. Charles Parish Public Schools just yet, she is considering it. She added that after each speaker was given the opportunity to present their side of the argument, the School Board meeting officially began.

“They just went about their business,” she said. “They knew that parents were coming and in my opinion it kind of feels like they were throwing us some scraps to keep us quiet ... like, ‘That’s all we’re going to give you and you should be satisfied with that.’”

Faust said she and others who believe masking should be a choice are organizing and planning out different routes to have their message be heard and hope to ultimately see a change in policy.

“I’m talking to some state representatives and some other higher up people I won’t name,” she said. “We want to hold the system liable for violating our Constitutional and state rights.”

A recording of each parish School Board meeting is uploaded to the school system’s site the day after the meeting. Notably absent in the most recent upload was the mask debate.

Stevie Crovetto, director of public information for the school system, said because the meeting had not officially begun and the comments were not part of the public meeting they were excluded.

DESTREHAN WILDCATS

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Destrehan had a new voice on the sideline guiding the team last season as Marcus Scott took the program’s helm, succeeding Stephen Robicheaux. A Wildcats team that has made deep playoff runs commonplace brought high expectations into 2020, pandemic or no, and this team delivered in Scott’s first season as head coach, going 11-2 on the season. Those 11 wins representing a win streak from Week 2 of the season to the Class 5A semifinal round at Acadiana, where the DHS season finally came to an end.

Destrehan brings back 14 starters from a year ago, including eight on an offense that controlled the ball throughout 2020. Four offensive line starters provide cohesion, while a deep and talented group of playmakers offer big-play potential. Defensively the team is less experienced than it’s been over the past two years, when the Wildcats represented one of 5A’s stingiest defensive units. How able that group is to replicate its prior success will go a long way in determining whether Destrehan makes yet another run to the Superdome or close.

“We still have a lot of work to do,” Scott said. “We try to schedule some tough games in the pre-district that will get us ready for district play and beyond. It’s a process that’s begun with the scrimmage and the jamboree upcoming, and it will keep building through the end of the season.”

Quarterback

Junior Jai Eugene and senior Ross Rogan competed during the spring and summer at quarterback, much as they did in the abbreviated lead up to the season a year ago. Eugene garnered most of the reps last year once the games began, but Rogan should see more time in 2021 – Eugene, who has received great attention from the college ranks as a potential defensive back, will see time in the Wildcats’ secondary this season, with Rogan picking up more time in his stead on offense.

The two bring different things to the table. Eugene, the son of the former LSU star of the same name, is ever dangerous with his legs, be it in extending a play or simply picking up big chunks of yardage himself on the run. Rogan is more of a traditional pocket passer who keeps the offense on the move with his arm.

“They will both play,” said Scott. “I see improvement from both guys from a year ago. Even last year, one thing they each did really well was take care of the ball. That’s a big thing for me. You can live with a punt. You can’t live with giving it to the other team on your side of the field.”

Joining them at quarterback are junior Patrick McNulty and sophomore Braden Fenerty.

Running back

This is a talented group, as was on full display during the Wildcats’ preseason scrimmage against John Ehret. The leader of the backfield is Shane Lee, who carved out a large role last year as a freshman – the rare first year player to do so with the Wildcats program.

“He can hit it between the tackles, but he can also catch it out the backfield,” Scott said. “He figures into the receiving game as well. He caught a touchdown in the scrimmage and showed that off. So, he’s a really versatile guy who can do a lot of things for us.”

Trey Nixon, Patrick LeBranch and Brandon Freeman join him in the backfield. LeBranch is a bigger back who can punish on inside runs. Nixon and Freeman are smaller and shifter, and both made several strong runs in the scrimmage.

“We have four guys who we know can contribute,” Scott said.

Wide receiver

Shane Lee

Calvin Bullock and Daniel Blood are returning starters from a year ago, and both players offer big-play ability. But it’s expected they’ll get a lot of help from a deep group at the position, including Caine Adams, Leslie Jefferson – who had a big spring game performance - Kerry Wilson, Luke Sparacello, Anthony Robinson and Dorian Smith.

“We figure to hopefully play between six and eight of them throughout the game,” Scott said. “We have a lot of guys who can help us in different ways. I think this group competes. These guys don’t mind getting out there and blocking on the perimeter. We just have to be a little more consistent in that area, but we have a group who works hard.”

A senior, Bullock brings height to the position at 6-foot-4 and is an outstanding route runner. At 6 feet tall himself, Blood also has good size and track speed, a versatile weapon dangerous in all phases for his team.

“We’ll depend on those guys to make big plays,” Scott said. “Jefferson is another kid who has shown he can make big plays down the field.”

At tight end and H-back, Garrett Borne is the starter while Dylan Ward, Brecken DiLapi and Quintin Clark will all mix in.

Offensive line

This is one of the most experienced units on the Wildcats, with four of the five starters returning from a year ago.

Seniors Dontrel Wilright and Donovan Kimble lead this group, which also returns strong players in center Alexander Hamilton, a junior, and sophomore Landry Cannon, who Scott said has had a tremendous summer of work. Rounding out the starters will be a rotation between Christian Martin and Jayce Mitchell, with Colby Vicknair providing depth.

A breakout season from Cannon would

“They all have good first steps and they use their hands well,” Scott said. “Paul is probably the key up front. When you have that guy in the middle who can control those gaps, it frees up and allows everyone else to make plays.”

Kolaj Cobbins, a sophomore, is the fourth starter up front and Scott said he’s coming along well. Amare Johnson and Jairin McCall mix in as depth.

Linebacker

Patrick Rojas is a first-year starter as a junior, but he played some very valuable snaps last year down the stretch of the season. Senior Jermaine Stewart is also starting for the first time after proving to be one of the team’s strongest contributors on special teams last year.

“They’re very talented ... both guys run sideline to sideline really well,” Scott said. “They’ve been making steady progress.”

Andrew Schaefer and Luke Berg should also see time at the position and provide depth.

Defensive back

This should be a Wildcats’ strength once again in 2021, a group of experienced ballhawks led by safety Kevin Adams and cornerback Lynard Harris, two juniors who have each played major snaps since their freshman seasons.

be very promising for Destrehan, as he brings the most size to the group at 6-foot-2, 350 pounds.

“Those guys being experienced like they are gives us a little more time in the passing game, and hopefully allows us to find balance in our approach,” Scott said. “The better your guys up front play, the better you have a chance to be.”

Defensive line

Steven Walker, Quintin Clark and Paul Brown, all seniors, anchor the Wildcats defense up front. Walker is a 6-foot-2, 240-pound two-way defender who is very adept against both the pass and the run, and the Wildcats like to find ways to manufacture one-on-one blocking looks for him on passing downs to fully take advantage of his ability to pressure the quarterback. He is one of the defense’s leaders. Clark, who also plays tight end and H-back on offense, is athletically gifted and difficult to shut out of the backfield.

And the 6-foot, 320-pound Brown, Scott said, is one of the defense’s most indispensable players given his ability to control the middle of the line at tackle.

“They played in the Dome as freshmen and got to the semifinals as sophomores. They’ve played a lot of football and bring that experience,” Scott said.

Junior Travon Thomas is a first-year starter who saw time in the postseason a year ago. Sophomore Tai Terrell shows promise at corner – he recorded an interception and pass breakup in the preseason scrimmage and saw several snaps matching up with one of the state’s best wideouts, Ehret’s Zavion Thomas. Safeties Jacobi Green and Josh Robinson are also key contributors, as is Anthony Robinson, a wide receiver on offense who is seeing more and more time at safety – as will Jai Eugene, crossing over from quarterback.

“Having experience here really helps you a lot. It simplifies things for your front,” Scott said.

Special Teams

Will Bryant has been the team’s reliable placekicker and returns again in that role, but more will be seen of him this season as he takes on punting duties as well. Daniel Blood will be a primary returner in the kicking game.

DHS CHEERLEADERS

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

COVID did nothing to slow Destrehan High’s cheerleading squad, which reached the top of the mountain: the Ladycats earned state championship glory among many other accolades.

The team competed at the SCA Battle at the Capitol and the WSA Louisiana State Championship competitions, earning first at both, and where also awarded High Point Champions, Best Building Team and Most Creative Team honors at WSA.

This year the team aims to enter the LHSAA State Competition, SCA Battle at the Capitol and NCA High School Nationals, said team sponsor Marcey Scott, and excitement is high. With more time to work together to hone skills and perfect performance this time around, the hope is the team can climb even higher.

“We are hoping to incorporate more inventive and challenging stunts this year. The competition team will be learning new routines to compete locally and nationally,” Scott said, while noting all the while, mitigation efforts are still in place to protect against an illness outbreak.

The Captain of this year’s team is Alyssa Walthall. Co-Captains are Calie Frangella and Kylie McDonner and Lieutenant Captain is Gavin Bunch.

These cheerleaders were selected by a panel of judges for their officer position based on an interview, technical skills, choreography skills, and communication skills, Scott said. Bunch is the program’s first male cheerleading officer.

“All four are great cheerleaders, positive role models and outstanding leaders,” Scott added.

The team is comprised of 31 cheerleaders and a mascot. Fourteen of the 32-person roster are new members.

“The new members have been putting in a lot of hard work and have contributed to the squad’s growth,” Scott said.

She said this group is a joy to work with, and their success is easy to cheer for – even as loudly and proudly as they do.

“The thing I like the most about working with the team is witnessing their accomplishments. The squad works very hard and is constantly challenging itself,” Scott said. “These girls and guys never give up on themselves. It is a real joy to share in their successes.”

Successes that, Scott says, mean more than just those in competition.

“I hope each cheerleader has a positive experience that they will cherish and look back on with fond memories,” she said. “Importantly, I want each member to take away life skills like how to work as a team member, how to promote a positive image, how to work hard and accomplish a goal that you set for yourself, that will aid them in the future.”

DHS BAND

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

After a COVID-19 altered 2020, this school year is one in which the Destrehan band plans to refocus and reestablish itself to peak form.

Band director Christopher Williams said this group’s leadership is especially strong.

“This year’s leaders are a special group,” he said. “They understand the importance of returning to what a normal season could be by resetting our focus and expectations. Each one of these folks have a special inherent nature to ensure that band is successful this year in what we do, how we perform, and holding themselves and others to the expectation to be great. They meet frequently to check in with each other as well as be reminded of the goals and expectations to redirect their actions and thoughts.”

The band will learn and put together a competitive show this year, unlike last season when that aspect was eliminated by COVID-19. Williams acknowledged that it is possible entering competition could once again prove unfeasible, but believes it’s important for the group to work toward the goal for several reasons.

“Despite what may happen, I think it’s important to give the students something to learn and look forward to each day and to have a goal to pursue even if that may become unrealistic at some point,” Williams said. “Safety will be our number one priority as was last year, but a very close second will be that of making and keeping our goals for this year.”

Whether or not competition is a part of the season, the plan is for the band to otherwise bring its focus and form back to what it was pre-pandemic.

“Destrehan’s school motto for the year is ‘Reset. Refocus. Reach your potential.’ I couldn’t think of a better phrase to use for this school year, and certainly how I want our students to think,” Williams said. “Before the end of last school year, I posed our leadership with the question of how successful they want to be, and then followed up with having them describe what a successful band may look like.”

He challenged them to consider in their collective actions whether each was something “A Top 10 band would do.” Williams said he can see band members embracing that mentality, a major plus considering roughly half of this year’s group is inexperienced.

One new element introduced is each band member will build a portfolio in order to see and hear how much they grow in a year in hopes that “it gives them the momentum to not only continue to pursue playing their instrument, but also to pursue anything in life,” Williams said.

DHS DESTY DARLINGS

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

For the nationally-ranked Desty Darlings Dance Team, winning in and out of competition alike is the goal, one usually attained with flair.

Each year, the Destys compete at both the state and national level. The team is nationally ranked in GameDay, Hip Hop, and Jazz competition categories. They are currently second in the nation for GameDay, eighth in the nation for Hip Hop and 13th in the nation for Jazz.

The Destys are currently the 2021 American Allstar Louisiana State Sweepstakes Champions for GameDay, Hip Hop, and Jazz. The dance squad also attended UDA camp in Baton Rouge this past summer where they all earned superior rankings qualifying them to once again attend and compete at the UDA National Dance Team Championship televised on ESPN held in Orlando, Florida in January of 2022 against the most prestigious dance teams across the nation.

The girls will begin preparing for both state and national competitions as well as working on routines for football season over the next few months, and team sponsor Micque Voges credits her team for its strong commitment and willingness to pay the price for success.

“They practice not only during the week but over the weekends and throughout all of the holidays to prepare for their competition season,” Voges said. “Nothing is more rewarding as a coach than to see the team achieve or surpass a goal they have set and worked so very hard for. I want each one of them to end each year feeling a true sense of accomplishment, pride in representing their school and community, and knowing that the journey is what really mattered, not necessarily the end result.”

COVID protocols changed much about the team’s day-to-day itinerary, and the team’s chances to perform were more limited than usual. Voges said she believes that brings a renewed appreciation for the season to come, and taught a valuable lesson to not take things for granted – especially things you’re passionate about.

“I feel the girls are more committed than ever to achieving both their personal and team goals,” Voges said. “Every year we continue to challenge ourselves with more difficult skills, tricks, and steps especially when it comes to competition. We will continue to push ourselves in each genre for competition.”

Kailie Carrigee leads the Destys as team Captain, and is a four-year member. Jaleia Powell is Co-Captain and a fellow four-year member while Maria Lockwood, the team’s Lieutenant is a three-year member.

The girls audition and are selected based on leadership skills, Voges said. They are judged by a panel of dance team coaches or directors from colleges and other dance and dance team organizations and are responsible for assisting in choreography and teaching of the routines.

“Their most important job is being a positive role model and example for their teammates,” Voges said.

This year the Destys have six new members. The team includes eight seniors, five juniors, six sophomores, and six freshmen to make up its 25-member roster.

WILDCAT
SPOTLIGHT:

Steven Walker chases down the quarterback in the backfield during scrimmage action.

DHS led by versatile stars on offense, defense

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Standing tall at 6-foot-4 and a dual football and basketball star, wide receiver Calvin Bullock won't be out-jumped or outfought for the ball by many defensive backs around the state.

But there's much more to the overall package with the senior Wildcat, who is also a superior route runner and a leader for a Destrehan team that just keeps on winning year in and year out. The returning All-District selection figures to be the primary deep threat for Destrehan in his final season and have the attention of recruiters at the collegiate level.

Bullock is returning to action after missing much of the on-field work this offseason following toe surgery. Destrehan head coach Marcus Scott believes Bullock, a physically and mentally tough player will be more than ready to help propel Destrehan forward.

"He doesn't get too excited, up or down about anything. He's never too low," Scott said. "He's steady, and that's really what you need when you have some youth on offense ... just very easy-going. Calvin loves to compete."

"He runs good routes, especially given his size. You have to be a great route runner and not just depend on his height, and he does a good job."

Those basketball skills also come into play when the ball is in the air.

"He does a real good job positioning his body and using it to shield off defenders," Scott said. "With Calvin and Daniel (Blood), they both have a lot of big play ability. It's our job to get them into situations where they can make a big impact, put them in motion and take advantage of what the defense is presenting us."

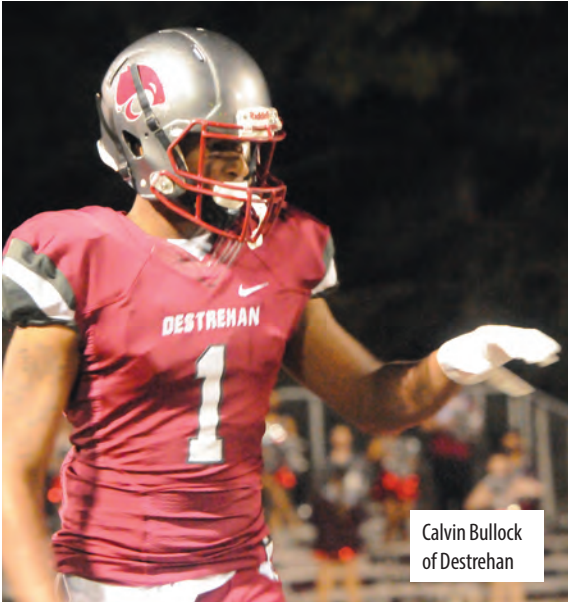

On the other side of the ball, Steven Walker makes sure that opposing quarterbacks don't get a chance to breathe after the snap of the ball. His explosiveness and ability to knife into the backfield makes him a headache for opponents statewide.

The senior defensive end blasts through blockers blending athleticism, strength, technique and his calling card, a very quick first step that Scott said sets him apart. Walker is also lauded for his consistent motor and effort.

"That (first step) is his strength but he's also very good with his hands," Scott said. "He's a plus against both the run and the pass, and that's something that always helps out a great deal."

But his work pressuring the quarterback is what really makes the 6'1, 240 lb. Walker pop for fans watching the Wildcats on Friday nights, and Destrehan does all it can to free him up to make life difficult for the opposing quarterback.

"We like to get him in a favorable position in obvious passing situations, and really let him rush the passer," Scott said. "We'll do a lot of different things with him."

Calvin Bullock of Destrehan

HAHNVILLE TIGERS

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Hahnville enters Daniel Luquet’s second season as head coach with a more experienced defense than it had entering 2020, a season it had to replace 10 of 11 starters from the previous year. The Tigers offense, conversely, will integrate several new faces as just three starters are back from last season.

But there is excitement surrounding the team after having an entire offseason, unlike 2020, to install and hone its systems. Quarterback Donovan Friloux looked strong in spring competition and a defense that promises to be much more cohesive gives Tiger fans reason to believe that a strong season is before them.

“I really like where we’re at,” said Luquet. “The biggest difference is that ability to now have an offseason between spring and summer. We had a good fall camp. Injury wise we’ve been pretty lucky to stay away from that. You’ve got to lay a strong foundation and I think we’ve done that.”

Quarterback

Junior Donovan Friloux shined at the Hahnville spring game, showing a very strong arm and exceptional mobility. After backing up Andrew Naquin last season, he steps into the starting role and Luquet is excited about his prospects.

“We always knew he had the ability,” said Luquet. “I think now, with him getting all the reps, he’s seeing what this offense is. He can do everything we need him to do. He brings the dynamic of being able to run and allow us to call designed runs. He can make all the throws. For him, it’s now about his ability to recognize coverages and continue to grow, understanding what defenses will do to try to take away his strengths.”

Friloux, Luquet said, will not shy away from the bright lights of Friday nights at Tiger Stadium.

“That won’t phase him,” Luquet said.

Sophomore Ryan Gregson backs up Friloux, while senior wide receiver Troy Kendrick also can mix in at quarterback.

Running back

Cole Villasenor stepped in for the injured Trey LaBranch prior to the post-season in 2020, and he’ll be called upon to do so again now that LaBranch has moved on to Mississippi College. Villasenor is tough and versatile and can contribute in the passing game. He’s not the biggest player, however, and this figures to be something of a committee approach with the senior leading the way.

Fellow senior K’Jon Smith complements him well as a bigger rusher who punishes the defense with his power. Joshua Joseph, a junior, is also expected to see time, and Luquet says all three can get the job done.

“(Smith) won our Toughest Tiger award. He’s a big, physical kid and can give you a lot running inside,” Luquet said. “Cole brings the most experience to the backfield and he’s going to get the start. He played in some big games for us. He’s not a 20-carry a game guy, so we’ll mix (Smith and Joseph) in.”

Wide receiver

There are explosive threats here between senior Troy Kendrick and junior Dakota Williams, both of whom are players who can win in the deep passing game or take a short pass a long way. Both are returning starters and can make Hahnville a very difficult team to matchup with defensively.

“We’ve got some guys there. Those two are phenomenal,” Luquet said. “We’re super excited to have a threat like that on both sides, making sure the defense can’t focus on the run.”

Beyond those two players, the Tigers are inexperienced at the position with the departure of a key starter from last year, Corey Lorio, one of the team’s most productive pass catchers. Sophomore Titus White, Luquet said, is someone with a skillset reminiscent of Lorio.

“(White) is never up, never down ... there’s nothing that really gets him too rowdy or rattled,” Luquet said. “He’s even keel. I think we’ll see some great things this year. He can do those things Corey Lorio gave us last year.”

At tight end, Josh Smith Jr. checks in as one of the team’s most exciting prospects. At 6-foot-4 and 230 pounds, he’ll be called upon to replace a 2020 All-District performer in Collin Zeringue.

“He’s very athletic and he’s a good route runner ... if he can figure out how to be as physical in the box as Collin was, he’s a good guy to replace the production we got from a really strong player,” Luquet said. “(Smith) has had a great camp. His ceiling is outstanding.”

Offensive line

On an offense with a lot of turnover, the line is no different – the Tigers lost four starters from 2020, with Tulane-commit Jarian Shelby the lone returner. The team’s left tackle, he leads a group that also includes twin brothers Dominic and Peyton Taranto, Roial Grover, Quincey McGuffey – all seniors – and junior Mason Brevette Jr.

Shelby is tough and reliable, and can handle assignments one-on-one. The Tarantos, Luquet said, are “program guys through and through” who have worked their way up for three years.

“Their sister (Karly Taranto) pitched for Hahnville and won a lot of games. Their grandpa owns Majoria’s ... they’re the epitome of what Hahnville is,” Luquet said. “We may lack experience on the line, but we have some big, strong guys up front. This line is more athletic than last year’s, and that bodes well for some of the things we’re trying to do in the screen game, sprint out protection and outside zone type stuff.”

Defensive line

Cincere Simmons was a breakout star for the Tigers in his sophomore season, and as a junior he’ll be counted on to be an even more disruptive force. Chris Scott, a senior, had a strong year of his own, and together he and Simmons anchor this line.

Rotating in on the line with them will be Dorian Narcisse, Jadden Green, Devin Douglas and Wesley Woll.

“We’re going to be rotating guys to keep them as fresh as possible, because games are won and lost up front,” Luquet said. “Chris and Cincere do a really good job helping to run that front.”

Linebacker

J’syon Joseph moves from safety to linebacker and has been nothing but impressive in that role over the offseason, Luquet said. The coach is very excited to see what kind of year Joseph turns in while playing up closer to the line.

“He’s our starting Sam and we’re putting him in the box ... he can cover tight ends and I’m expecting him to have an outstanding, outstanding football season,” Luquet said. “He’s instinctive and fast, he has good hands ... I think we’ve really found a niche in what he can do.”

Darnell Brown will start at Will and Jude Milford, who transferred to HHS last season but could not play until this year, will be the Mike. Cameron Brown will back them up.

Milford, Luquet said, reminds him of former HHS linebacker John Pearsall in terms of his knowledge of the game.

“Understanding the game as well as he does ... he’s really instinctive,” Luquet said.

Defensive back

Jyran Smith and Shy Collins are the returning starters in the secondary, Smith a corner and Collins a safety. Sam Simoneaux, Jason Wells Jr. and Jerriek Lucas round out the starting defensive back group.

Smith is more often than not tasked with checking the opposition’s best pass catcher, and Luquet said he’ll take his chances with Smith any day. The secondary as a group, for that matter, has a chance to take a big step forward after having a full offseason to come together, Luquet said.

“Last year, we had issues with communication. A lot of guys who played last year maybe weren’t in their ideal spot, but because of the short window we had, we had to ask them to play where we needed them,” he said. “We should be better set up this time, and I think being better up front will help us as well with that. There were times they had to cover for a long time.”

Special teams

Tate White will expand his duties from his placekicking of a year ago to punting as well in 2021. Dakota Williams and Titus White will handle punt return duties. Williams, White and Kendrick will split up kick return work.

GOOD LUCK TIGERS & WILDCATS!

HHS CHEERLEADERS

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Hahnville’s cheerleading squad will be back on the sidelines to cheer on the Fighting Tigers once again, but it is also set to return to competition of its own this school year.

Team sponsor Jennifer Matthews notes the Tigers are going to have a competition team this year, and that there’s much excitement that the competitions will most likely be in person.

The Tigers plan to compete at regionals and hope there to earn an invitation to nationals. The team also plans to compete in the state competition.

Last year Hahnville competed at regionals and placed first in the Game Day division and third in Traditional. At nationals the team placed sixth in Traditional and third in Game Day.

Matthews said the attention remains on fundamentals and having fun, while fostering an environment where the team members grow as people.

“We focus on teaching teamwork and leadership,” Matthews said. “We hope that the cheerleaders learn that hard work determines how well you do. If you are willing to put in the work, the rewards are great. I also hope that the team learns leadership skills and what it takes to be a leader.”

Tigers 2021-22 Captain is Madelyn

Cooper. Co-captains are Emily Schmill and Laila Grant. Lieutenant is Alida Dufrene.

“Our officers earned their roles by scoring well on their questionnaire, interview, tryout score, and choreography scores,” said Matthews. “We have four officers this year due the increase in number on our team.”

Each year the squad puts their mind to finding new ways to get the crowd more involved.

“We plan to incorporate more sign work in our cheers,” Matthews said.

The team is evenly split between experienced cheerleaders and new faces. About half of the team this year consists of returning members while the other half are making their debut. Matthews said she’s excited to work with a larger group and to see what this squad is capable of.

HHS BAND

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Tiger Stadium is a special place to watch a high school football game. The Hahnville band ranks high among the reasons that atmosphere is so revered.

This year’s band leaders are a mix of seniors and juniors who have proven themselves both musically and personally, said band director Eric Gueniot. That overall experience will come in handy given the lack of reps the band got comparatively in 2020 due to the pandemic, particularly for its younger members. Freshman and sophomores comprise more than half the overall band roster.

“They are good people who lead by example,” Gueniot said. “This year their job may be the most difficult ever since there was no marching done last year, but they have been working hard from the very start.”

That plays out in that a new element this year is that two grades of students entered band camp this year having never marched in band before, necessitating teaching both the sophomore and incoming freshman class marching skills from scratch.

The band plans to return to competition this year and have added an additional performance to its usual schedule. COVID may or may not affect these plans, but Gueniot said this group will approach things as if everything will play out as usual, while also taking safety precautions along the way.

The band also introduces a new director on staff in Daniel Terrebonne, a Hahnville alum, who joined the school’s ranks in June and is proud to be back at his Alma Mater.

He will help with the goal of always instilling solid fundamental skills and using the activity of band to teach good personal skills to the students, Gueniot said.

The longtime band director says he’s eager to see this group in action, be it in competition or on Friday night’s supporting the football team and performing for the crowd. He’s been the band’s director for many years and says it doesn’t get old because of the fun groups that come through the band room year after year.

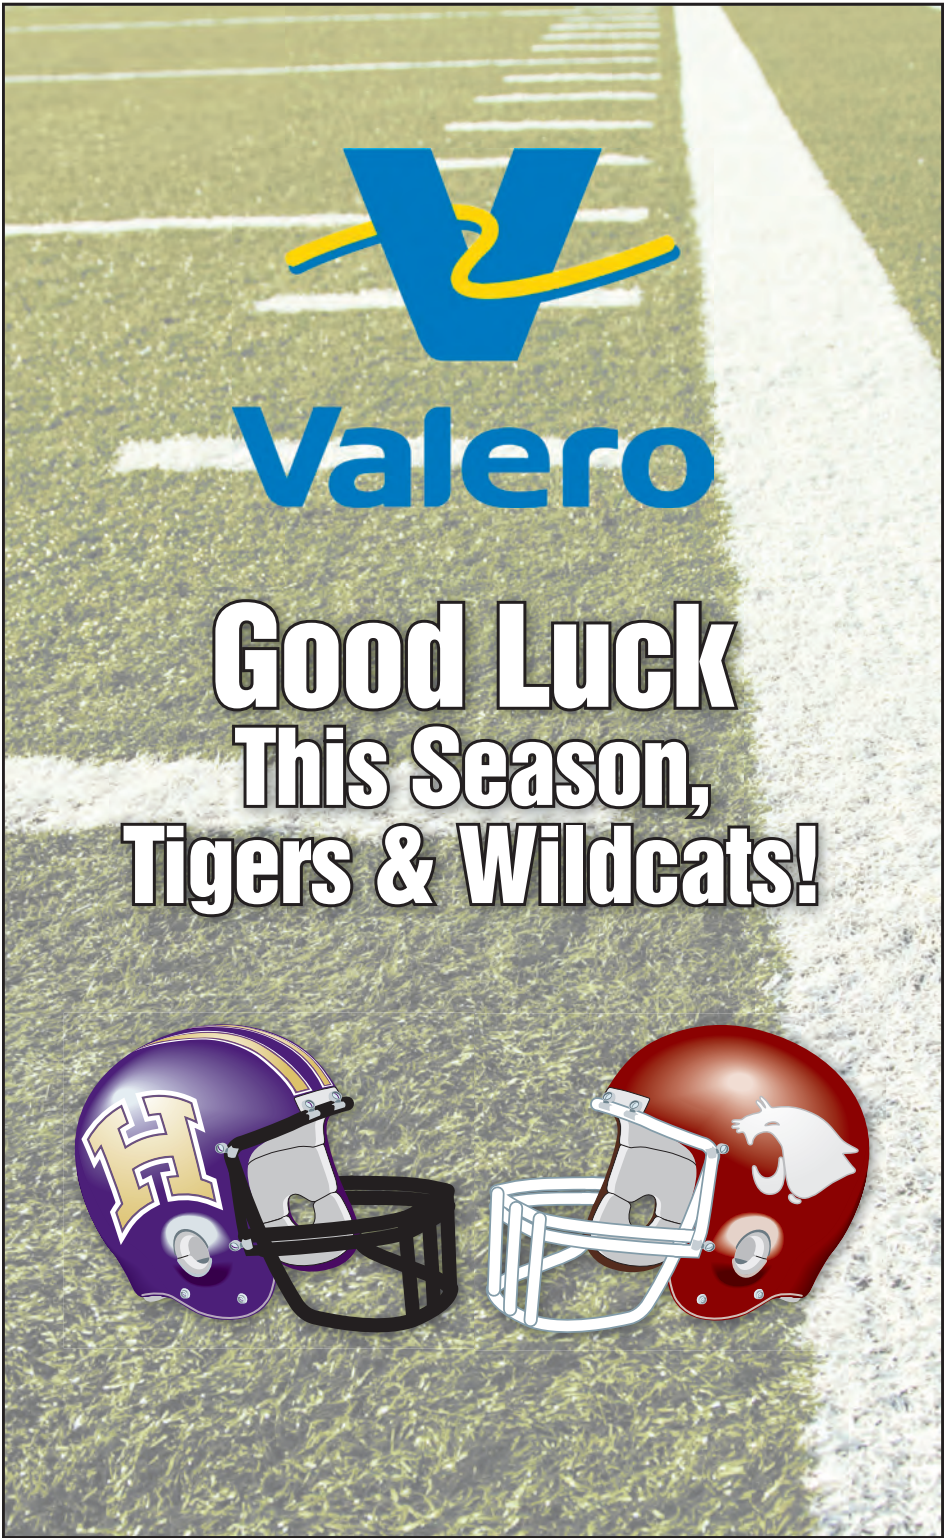

“The best part of my job is working with great students,” he said. “It brings me great pride to be able to watch them grow and improve over their four years with us.”

Last season was a challenge, he admits, but it made him proud to see the students persevere.

“What sticks with me most was just how different everything was for us. For me, it was the most challenging season I’ve ever faced. What I will remember about it was how the kids just kept working, kept smiling, and kept giving their all no matter what circumstances they faced,” Gueniot said.

HHS HI-STEPPERS

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

The Hahnville Hi-Steppers will be back in action in the stands Friday nights in Tiger Stadium, helping to set the stage for one of the state’s best prep football environments for fans in attendance.

The officers for the 2021-2022 team are Monae Gordon (Captain), Annemarie McMillan (Co-Captain) and Jocelyn Seipel (Lieutenant). The three earned their respective positions from their leadership qualities, dance ability, as well as dedication to the team, said the team’s coach Tramera Lee.

“The officers are a crucial part of the team because they have to uphold their responsibilities and then so especially if one of the coaches isn’t present. They have the tough part of being able to separate friendship when it’s time to work and get things done,” Lee said.

Lee notes that tradition is a big part of the Hi-Steppers program and will be respected, but that the team also will tweak some things and adapt as the dance landscape changes. She said the team will keep some elements the same from previous years, but at the same time are slowly incorporating new dance techniques and styles that haven’t been done before.

“One thing we are looking to incorporate even more this year are tricks like headsprings, kip ups, and stalls,” Lee said.

Many elements have changed since last year given the alterations to normal procedure that were interrupted by COVID. The girls are now required to wear masks during some parts of practice as per COVID-19 precautions. But Friday nights will look more normal than last year, she notes, as the dance team can now return to the stands to perform instead of the track, and be able to travel to away games as well, which was not the case in 2020.

This year’s team is fairly experienced across the board. Eight new members are joining the roster as well.

“The new members came in ready to work and get on the level that the veterans have been able to attain from their years on the team,” Lee said.

Above all, she wants those new team members, as well as those who are veterans of the roster to unlock and meet their potential as dancers and as people.

“I focus on challenging them,” Lee said. “I want to bring out the best in them ... succeeding as a team and not just as an individual is my expectation. I want them to not only be great dancers but also great young women who carry themselves in a manner their teammates, coaches and staff can be proud of.”

Ryan Arena Editor

At 6-foot-4, 290 pounds, Jarian Shelby is quite the imposing figure for opposing defensive players – and an attractive one for collegiate scouts, as the senior left tackle is committed to play for the Tulane Green Wave after his Hahnville days are done.

But size and strength are only part of the package with Shelby, a smart and versatile player who can play every spot on the offensive line and excels as much off the field as on.

“He’s a high intensity kid,” said HHS head coach Daniel Luquet. “He’s great in the classroom and great in the community. He just gets after it at practice. Tulane is getting a really good one.”

Luquet said Shelby isn’t the most vocal of his key players, but he manages to lead effectively all the same.

“We’re trying to get him to be more verbal, but at the end of the day sometimes actions speak louder than words. He really understands that,” Luquet said. “He takes ownership of what he needs to do, what the offense needs to do and what those guys up front needs to do.”

Shelby is the lone returning starter on the offensive line, and that leadership is that much more critical as a result.

On the field, he gives Luquet options as a playcaller due to his ability to take on an assignment without a double team and to get out to block corners, safeties and linebackers on the perimeter in the screen and rollout game.

“If we need a yard to get outside, I know I can go toward him because it’s going to happen,” Luquet said.

On the defensive side of the ball, Jyrán Smith is a playmaker.

The senior cornerback, like Shelby, let’s his actions speak for him. Routinely matched up with some of the best wide receivers in the state – including every day at practice – he is never fazed.

“He’s consistently in the right place with great technique,” Luquet said. “He does what we ask him to do. I think the world of our wide receivers in Dakota (Williams) and Troy (Kendrick) ... he goes against them every day and it’s made him into someone you are so comfortable matching up against someone else’s best. He’s put in the work.”

Smith earned Toughest Tiger honors for his work in the off-season program and is a team captain. He’s gives the coaching staff a leg up through his ability to communicate with his teammates and get people situated into the correct spots.

He’s as mentally tough as he is physically tough, Luquet said, as cornerback can be a lonely place if things go the wrong way.

“At the end of the day, if I’m a lineman and I go in the wrong hap, I have the linebacker as my safety,” Luquet said. “If I’m a linebacker, I have the safety. At corner, I’ve got that safety sometimes, but sometimes it’s just me and the other guy and nobody’s behind me.

“So, those spots where you’re one-on-one? That’s where I’m comfortable with him on anyone’s best, any Friday night.”

Jyrán Smith of Hahnville.

HHS students place at national festival

Monique Roth Lifestyles Editor
moniquer@heraldguide.com

Six members of Hahnville High School’s International Thespian Society Troupe #7313 each placed in individual events at the recently held International Thespian Society’s National Festival.

The International Thespian Excellence Awards (or Thespys® for short) recognize the highest level of achievement in school theatre performance, technical theatre, writing and filmmaking. The educational program celebrates the work of theatre students and gives them the opportunity to receive constructive feedback on prepared theatrical material, technical design, plays and short films.

Earning a Superior rating this year were HHS students Adam Vedros for Solo Musical Theatre Performance, Frank Clavelle for Lighting Design, Marley Cortez for Lighting Design and Logan Jones for Sound Design. Taylor Champagne ranked Excellent for Scenic Design, while Amanda Selman earned Excellent for Solo Musical Theatre Performance.

The Hahnville Theatre program is under the direction of husband and wife Lucas and Megan Harms. The two teach talented theatre courses at HHS as well as direct the schools’ ITS troupe, which is open to all students.

“The Thespian Society is actually like our extra-curricular wing open to anyone in the school,” Megan said. “Anyone can work on the shows we do and take part. There’s something for everybody ... everybody can get involved.”

The Harms have cultivated one of the strongest high school theatre programs in the Greater New Orleans area, with their students consistently coming out on top in state festivals and national stages.

This year Clavelle received the highest score in the state for lighting design, while Champagne received the highest score in the state for scenic design.

“I am so proud of the work these students have done ... their dedication and creativity are inspiring,” Lucas said. “It’s a super good feeling to know that I get to work with this level of creativity and artistry every day.”

Lucas said he and Megan aim to challenge their students daily.

“We also give them as many collaborative opportunities as possible to teach them that theatre is a collaboration,” he said. “A lot of other avenues push them to believe that it’s important to be a good leader. However, our philosophy is it’s more important to be a collaborative contributor. It’s also very important to us that students understand that theatre is a world where all voices can be heard, acknowledged and respected.”

Megan said she thinks the greatest thing about the theatre program at HHS is that students can be intensely involved in whatever area they’re most passionate about and that opportunities are plentiful – the school puts on a play and musical each year, and the Harms have recently decided to do an annual spring, outdoor Shakespeare offering as well.

Students who won at the national festival this year were elated with their honors.

“I felt a rush of pride for myself and my fellow thespians,” Vedros said of learning the results. “Without the help of Mr. and Mrs. Harms, I wouldn’t have been able to do it.”

Jones agreed.
“The hard work that was put into this project was all worth it after getting those results ... hi mom.”

Notice: In 1986 all asbestos materials were identified in all school buildings. A management plan was developed for each school as per the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act (AHERA). The management plan is located in a binder in the main office of each school. The binders are available for review upon request.

Since the plan was developed, most of the asbestos has been removed. In a few buildings, some floor tile still remains that contains asbestos. All of the schools meet the health requirements that pertain to the regulation. If you have any questions concerning this topic, please contact Kevin Barney, Director of Physical Plant Maintenance at 985-331-3600 between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

Safety Parents, if you are sending your child to school, please ensure you take their temperature daily before leaving your care. If your child is sick or experiencing any symptoms of sickness, please keep him/her home. This will help keep a safe environment for all our students and minimize additional impacts on our schools.

COVID -19 Response Although we have taken and continue to take proactive safety and health measures to mitigate potential spread and exposure of the COVID-19 virus, we recognize the virus is still very active in our community, state, and country. As expected and planned for, we have students and employees reporting confirmed positive COVID-19 cases. This will continue as we operate schools during a pandemic. We communicate regularly with the Louisiana Department of Health, follow their guidance, and implement protocols established as outlined in our Family Reopening Guide. Please know that the safety of our employees and students is paramount and any decision relative to schools and/or classroom closures will be made in collaboration with public health officials. In the unfortunate event we must close a school or classroom temporarily or for an extended period of time, we will notify you via phone call, email and text. Each school is prepared to provide continued learning for students in the event of a closure through the use of district-provided technology devices.

Opening of School/Welcome Back Video After many months of preparation and anticipation, we successfully and safely reopened schools this month for our students and families both virtually and in-person. Our heroic staff have and continue to operate under immense pressure and challenges to keep our students safe and schools open. While there are noticeable changes, our core business of teaching and learning triumphantly returned across our schools and virtual environments. The Superintendent thanked the Public Information Department for capturing some special moments from the first days of school. (VIDEO SHOWN) He also thanked our videographer/producer, Mason Daughn, for once again putting this together for our system.

The Superintendent gave a special thank you to the Board for their leadership and support throughout the last few months as we have had to quickly change plans based on the current spread of COVID-19. He also thanked our dedicated, hardworking employees who continue to work valiantly in the face of adversity to make sure students are educated and provided high quality educational opportunities that prepare them for their future. And finally thanked our families and expressed appreciation for their continued grace, adaptability, patience and understanding as we continue to implement safety practices and protocols needed to safely operate schools during this pandemic. The Superintendent said he knows it isn't and hasn't been easy, but is so proud of the way our students, employees, parents, and community continue to work together for the betterment of our school system and the almost 10,000 students we have the responsibility to educate and families to support through our current operations. We know everything hasn't gone according to plan, and we continue to navigate daily obstacles, but we promise to endure and turn those challenges into opportunities, together, for our students.
