25 floats, nearly 100 units to roll with Krewe of Lul Saturday

Jonathan Menard Publisher
jonathanm@heraldguide.com

The Krewe of Lul will roll through the streets of Luling on Saturday at noon with 25 floats and nearly 100 total units. Despite earlier concerns that road construction on Paul Maillard would alter this year's route, the krewe will roll down its traditional path. The parade will begin at the intersection of Angus Drive and Paul Maillard, then continue north down Paul Maillard before turning right onto River Road, right on Sugarhouse Road and making another right onto Angus Drive.

Let the good times roll. The Krewe of Des Allemands parade is back in action this Sunday at 1 p.m. as a tight-knit community gathers once again to celebrate Mardi Gras. "We always look forward to it," said Mitzi Petit of the Krewe of Des Allemands parade committee. "Seeing the families all get together ... this is a day for that and you see it all across the parade route, families together having a good time. That this is such a family event, it really makes

Krewe of Lul

King Mark Harmon & Queen Aleta Harmon

Jonathan Menard Publisher
jonathanm@heraldguide.com

In 1978 Mark and Aleta Harmon helped start the Krewe of Lul, and while they’ve ridden in the parade around 15 times since then, this time they will be rolling through the streets of Luling as the king and queen.

“We were very surprised to be picked for the king and queen,” Aleta said. “It’s amazing that we are still a part of the Krewe of Lul, something we helped to start 47 years ago.”

The couple, who currently reside in Magnolia Ridge, have been married for 50 years and have two children and four grandchildren. Mark has owned Civil Construction Contractors since 1983, while Aleta has worked as an x-ray tech for 20 years.

They say that their fondest memory of the Krewe of Lul parade is building the Popeye float. Aleta enjoys going to the gym and fishing, while Mark’s hobbies include hunting and fishing.

Mark and Aleta will roll on the Krewe of Lul’s royal float, and they have added their own decorations to the float in order to make it special for them. They decided to keep the traditional Mardi Gras theme of purple, green and gold.

The couple will also toss customized drink koozies and cups with their names on them. The traditional scrolls will also be given out.

“It’s very special for us to have our four grandchildren on the float with us watching them have a wonderful time,” Aleta said.

This year’s parade is the 47th anniversary of the Krewe of Lul. Along with the Harmons, this year’s grand marshal, James “Jimmy” Crisham, also helped organize the first parade.

“It has been wonderful to honor many of the parade organizers in the past several years,” Debbie Dufresne Vial, parade organizer, said. “As we approach the 50th year of the Krewe of Lul, recognizing them allows the community to celebrate them as they reign on parade day.”

Saturday’s parade will include 25 floats with 99 total units.

Mardi Gras

Krewe of Des Allemands

King Merlin Schaubhut & Queen Joyce Chiasson Schaubhut

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

King Merlin Schaubhut and Queen Joyce Chiasson Schaubhut will reign over the Krewe of Des Allemands when the parade rolls this Sunday at 1 p.m.

Some might call it fitting – after all, carnival royalty runs in the family.

Merlin’s mother and father reigned as king and queen of the parade in 1998. Adding to that, Merlin’s sister Linda Cunningham and Cunningham’s cousin Peggy Frickey will also ride as grand marshals, making this year’s Des Allemands parade a true family affair.

For Merlin, this parade is something that’s been a part of his life for just about all of it.

“I started barbequing for this parade when I was 16 years old,” said the lifelong Des Allemands resident. “(The parade’s) gotten really big now. We enjoy seeing all the people.”

Joyce, meanwhile, has been attending the parade yearly and enjoying the festivities for many years herself. A New Orleans native, she and Merlin have been married for 59 years – ever since meeting at a local dance – and this has been a favorite tradition for her.

What is brand new, however, is the chance to ride in the parade – neither has before.

“No, never ... my kids did with my mother-in-law and them, but this will be a first for us,” said Joyce. “We’ve been hearing a lot from family who are looking to come and see us ... I’m really looking forward to it.

“We’ve been going to watch the parade for years and years, so this will be a different way to enjoy it.”

The aforementioned barbeque, in fact, has been central to an annual event at their home, where the couple hosts friends and family for the parade celebration. And though they have some extra responsibilities as king and queen this year, that celebration is set to take place once again this year.

“We’re going to have a big party after,” Joyce said. “All of our families are coming.”

Merlin worked at Avondale shipyard for many years before retiring. Joyce was a stay-at-home mom and quite the experienced babysitter – doing so for 15 children, including her grandchildren.

The two did not expect to reign and the news came as such a surprise that Joyce said they initially declined.

“We went to a birthday party and the committee showed up – they asked if we wanted to be king and queen,” Joyce said. “And I said, ‘Oh no!’ I think I was in shock and at first we told them no, but after a little while and a chance to think about it we agreed to do it. We were honored.”

Preparation may be made a bit easier by the fact that the family members can all compare riding notes. The couple says they’re ready to roll.

“We’ve got some cups and koozies and a lot of beads,” said Joyce. “Some stuffed animals – we’ve got a good bit.”

Krewe of Lul

Grand Marshal

James “Jimmy” Crisham

Jonathan Menard Publisher
jonathanm@heraldguide.com

An original member of the first Krewe of Lul back in 1978, James “Jimmy” Crisham will serve as grand marshal when the parade rolls on Saturday, riding in the back of a white El Dorado.

It’s been decades since Crisham has ridden in the Krewe of Lul, though he did so the first five years of the parade’s existence and has watched it roll by with his family and friends over the years. He said everyone he knew was excited for him when he got the news that he’d be serving as grand marshal.

“I was excited because I was one of the original people who started the parade,” Crisham said. “It has a special place in my heart.”

In fact, Crisham is responsible for the krewe’s name.

“It was supposed to be Krewe of Lu but I was writing an article for the newspaper and I wrote Krewe of Lul. It’s been like that ever since,” he said.

Crisham has lived in St. Charles Parish for 73 years and was married to the late Janie Crisham. He was two children and three grandchildren, two of which will ride with him in the parade. He worked for Monsanto for 35 years. His hobbies include golf, hunting and fishing.

“I was born in New Orleans, raised in St. Rose and then moved across the river,” he said. “At Monsanto I worked with a lot of people so I know a lot of people and I’m looking forward to seeing all of them.”

what the little parade he helped start in 1978 has grown to over the years.

“That’s the biggest reward...seeing how far it’s come and the work and the passion the people who are doing it now are putting in,” he said. “I’m so proud of all the people over the years who carried the ball and didn’t let it drop. It means a lot to the people in the parish because, for some, that’s the only parade they go to.”

“It there’s nice weather, there’s going to be tons of people out there. To see what it is today is amazing.”

The parade will begin at noon on Saturday at the intersection of Angus Drive and Paul Maillard, then continue north down Paul Maillard before turning right onto River Road, right on Sugarhouse Road and making another right onto Angus Drive.

Saturday’s parade will include 25 floats with 99 total units.

Krewe of Des Allemands

Grand Marshals

Peggy Matherne Frickey

Linda Schaubhut Cunningham

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

It's all in the family when it comes to Krewe of Des Allemands royalty this year, as cousins Linda Schaubhut Cunningham and Peggy Matherne Frickey are the parade's 2024 grand marshals.

Cunningham is the sister of this year's King, Merlin Schaubhut – one reason she was quite surprised to hear she was chosen for the honor.

"They had me go to PJ's Coffee, and I was there with my daughter and my friend," said Cunningham. "Then they all came in with the krewe and asked me. I was surprised because my brother and my sister-in-law were king and queen already, so I didn't expect to be asked. It should be a lot of fun, with Peggy as well."

Cunningham and Schaubhut's parents reigned as king and queen of the parade in 1998.

"So, all of this brings back memories," Cunningham said. "Mardi Gras was always fun. We'd all get together as a family to go."

Born and raised in Des Allemands, she said she has spent many years going to the parade – the trip was never far.

"Where I live on Lorraine Drive – they pass right down my street," she said. "It's very convenient. But I've always gone, even before I lived in this house. Whenever they had a parade, I was there."

Also born and raised in Des Allemands, Frickey said she's quite ready to start the festivities. Like Cunningham, Frickey said she was surprised by the invitation to ride as royalty this year, and like her cousin she said she was very honored to be able to do so.

"I've been going since it first started, I imagine," Frickey said. "I'm all ready to go this year. I'm looking forward to seeing all the people and having fun."

She said by the sounds of it, several family members will be out on the route to see her, which will only make the day all the more fun.

"I've got some hula hoops, some little umbrellas and some special beads – lot of throws for everyone," Frickey said.

While historically she's loved the Mardi Gras experience, she said she hasn't been as much of a parade-goer in recent years.

This will be a welcome change of pace. "It'll be really different, especially because I haven't rode before," Frickey said.

The road construction did cause a re-location of the lineup area, however. Saturday's parade will include 25 floats with 99 total units. Krewe of Lul parade organizer Debbie Dufresne Vial said the parade will include dance teams, festival queens, jeeps, slingshots, horses and an antique fire truck. Hahnville High School will be represented by their ROTC, band, dance team and cheerleaders. The Luling, Paradis and Killona fire departments will also roll in the parade. Mark and Aleta Harmon will serve as the king and queen of the parade, while the grand marshal is James "Jimmy" Crisham. All of this year's royalty were original organizers of the parade in 1978. St. Charles Parish Hospital's Mr. Peanut Butter will collect jars of peanut butter on the route, while the ARC of St Charles will follow the parade to take bead donations. "Krewe of Lul attracts parade-goers of all ages," Lul Captain Beth Landry said. "The kids love to catch beads and dance along with the HHS band while the adults enjoy tailgating with family, friends and neighbors."

it so much fun.”

Petit estimates 10 to 12 floats will be a part of the action again, along with the local school bands, ROTC, fire trucks and more.

The parade route begins on Whitley Road before traveling up to U.S. Highway 90, turning into the town’s business district, heading down Dejean Street toward Old Spanish Trail and then backing up Lorraine Drive to the highway.

Merlin Schaubhut and Joyce Chiasson Schaubhut reign this year as king and queen. Peggy Matherne Frickey and Linda Schaubhut Cunningham are the Krewe’s grand marshals.

Merlin Schaubhut’s parents reigned as king and queen in 1998. All four members of this year’s royalty are family members as well – Cunningham is Merlin’s sister, while Frickey and Cunningham are cousins.

As in years past, St. Charles Parish Hospital will be collecting peanut butter and cash along the parade route. Everything collected will be donated to St. Charles Social Concerns to stock their pantry. The tradition now spans more than 30 years.

The parade as a whole, meanwhile, has been rolling for more than 60 years. The event was sidelined for two years due to COVID-19 and storm devastation, but it’s been back and going strong for the past two years.

“Des Allemands has lost so much since the storm, so we’re holding on to what we have,” Petit said. “It should be a good time for everyone.”

Tigers outlast Byrd in opening round, score twice in 2nd half

Oubre, Fontenot
supply goals in victory

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

It had been 20 years since the Hahnville boys soccer team last won a playoff game.

Had been – as in past tense, thanks to the Tigers' effort Friday night.

No. 14 Hahnville defeated visiting 19-seed C.E. Byrd 2-1 on the back of goals by Evan Oubre and Owen Fontenot, as well as a gutsy defensive effort that held Byrd scoreless until the final minutes of the match.

“Obviously, (the 2023 playoff loss) was heartbreaking for us last year. This year, we wanted to come back for more - we wanted this and we got it.”

— Owen Fontenot

“We’ve played this game all our life,” said Oubre. “We played to our specialty, passing and moving through the mid(-field). It’s how we won this game ... we pass the ball, we connect and we’ve got a lot of youth and a lot of talent on this team. We got it done.”

HHS advanced to match up with No. 3 Denham Springs, a match that was set to take place Wednesday (after press time – check heraldguide.com for an update on that match).

Victory was especially sweet for a Tigers group featuring numerous players who nearly broke the playoff victory drought last year, when a late rally by Hahnville forced overtime before Northshore ultimately eliminated Hahnville in a first-round overtime

This time, Hahnville would not allow itself to go one-and-done.

“Obviously, that was heartbreaking for us last year,” said Fontenot. “This year, we wanted to come back for more. We wanted this and we got it.”

Oubre scored within the first minute of the second half to break what was a scoreless tie at halftime.

“I saw the ball coming to me ... it was a perfect opportunity and I just let it rip,” said Oubre. “It went over the keeper ... I think that kicked us off.”

Hahnville head coach Matt Oubre concurred.

“That was a huge boost,” he said. “I think we carried that energy throughout the rest of the game. The guys showed a lot of heart throughout the second half to finish it.”

About 20 minutes later, midway through the second half, Fontenot got the ball near the goal and found an opening for a score.

“We connected it up the line and got a ball across the middle,” said Fontenot. “We tapped it over the backline and put it away. Just had to make it happen.”

Byrd threatened a rally late. An apparent goal was negated by an offsides penalty with 2:44 remaining. Joey Stratton's goal in stoppage time moments later, however, meant the Tigers would have to close strong defensively.

A scramble by Byrd (8-8-2) to try and knot things up came up empty, however, and when the whistles closed play the Tigers had done something not accomplished in their program for two decades.

It was the step forward the Tigers desired. Hahnville has taken major steps forward in each season under Matt Oubre, reaching the playoffs for each of the past three seasons and posting a very strong overall win-loss record over that span. This season, HHS moves to 14-2-4. The Tigers have won six consecutive matches.

“I thought we played outstanding,” Matt Oubre said. “We aim to play fast and physical and we did that ... in the first 10-15 minutes, they were really pressing us. Once our guys started figuring that out, we started connecting in midfield and creating a lot of chances going forward.”

He said the win was a special one.

“The last three years, to see the fruit of all of their hard work showing up and winning today, it means a lot,” he said.

Defense was just as important as the goals scored. Hahnville thwarted a number of chances for Byrd, including one very dangerous possession for Hahnville where the ball was perilously close to the goal.

“Trevor Breaux cleared a ball off the line on one of their corner kicks,” Matt Oubre said. “To have the discipline to stay where he was and clear that ball was huge. Little things like that give your whole team energy.”

Daniel Bowman controls the ball for Hahnville in the Tigers' playoff victory over Byrd.

Lady Tigers finish season on road, fall to Byrd in playoffs

Young Hahnville squad went 4-0-1 over last 5 regular season matchups

Hahnville's Jillian Michel

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Hahnville's season came to an end on the road Saturday, as the Lady Tigers fell 5-0 to host C.E. Byrd in the opening round of the Division I girls state soccer playoffs.

The No. 22 seed Tigers went ready to fight and at halftime was hanging tough, trailing the 11 seed 1-0. A penalty kick in the box converted by Byrd pushed the lead to 2-0, and from there Byrd was able to successfully counterattack a Tigers' squad focusing more resources to offense in the comeback effort.

"We knew there wasn't a lot of leeway for us – we needed to play a perfect game to upset that team," said Hahnville head coach Edgar Fuentes. "We played to the best of our ability ... once it was 2-0, I'm not the type of coach who's going to say, 'OK, good fight, let's hang on' - we're gonna go try to score and come back in this thing. We pushed up our numbers on offense and that led to more gaps on the defensive side. The rest is history ... they scored three more.

"I think we went out and showed (Byrd) we weren't going to hang our heads and give up. We gave it all we had."

Byrd advanced to round two to face No. 6 Southside.

Even in the loss, the match should prove valuable learning experience for a very young Tigers team bringing back the majority of its players next season. On top of facing a quality team, Hahnville had the chance to experience a long playoff road trip to Shreveport.

"The biggest thing was exposing that young class to those big battles this season," Fuentes said. "It helps them understand what's expected of them. Next year, they'll be much better, much stronger and now they know what's coming at them, instead of that deer in the headlights situation."

Fuentes said it'll be exciting to see what's in store for this group, which is heavy on players who play year-round club ball.

"It's a very talented group, very technical ... pretty much the entire team is full of club players, and that makes it easier for a coach to focus on tactics instead of fundamentals. We'll work on strengthening, work on our speed and agility, so when we put all those skills together, we can play with the big dogs in the state."

Ashlyn DeSoto led Hahnville (7-7-1) in scoring this season and the junior will return next season.

Junior Riley Folse was another team leader who "completely took over that midfield," Fuentes said.

"She controlled the tempo," said Fuentes. "Calling shots and directing traffic. She grew up alot this season."

Freshman Lilly Hooper likewise made an impact in her first season with the team.

"She was tremendous for us," said Fuentes. "The way she glides with the ball, I can only imagine how much better she'll become over the next three years."

Junior Taylor Madere was central to the team's defense this season as it's center-back.

"Without her, our defense would have been lost," said Fuentes.

The Tigers should also receive a big lift from a returning player next season – junior striker Addison Agnelly, who missed the entirety of the season due to injury.

"I'm sure she'll be hungry after missing her junior year," said Fuentes.

There's plenty to build on.

"I'm very proud of everything we accomplished this year ... I know it doesn't look like much, but given our inexperience and youth, we worked on establishing a foundation. I think it only gets better from here," Fuentes said.

Super Sunday promises a battle

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

So, I really have no idea.

This one's too close to call – but I won't let that stop me from trying.

Super Bowl Sunday sees Patrick Mahomes and the Kansas City Chiefs are once again back in the big game, facing off with one of the franchises the team has seen before in Super competition – the San Francisco 49ers, returning for its second Super Bowl in the past four seasons.

Let's examine some X-Factors for this one:

- *The Taylor Swift Effect:

Just kidding.

- *Brock Purdy is the ultimate wildcard.

Purdy was a favorite to earn the MVP award entering San Francisco's Christmas matchup with Baltimore, something almost unthinkable prior to the season, but it was becoming very hard to argue against his incredible efficiency and his team's success.

Then Purdy played the worst game of his young career, as the Niners were dominated by the Ravens on a turnover-heavy night for the quarterback, who was lifted late in the 4th quarter.

Since then, Purdy has been a roller-coaster ride. I don't think we've seen the San Francisco offense operating quite as smoothly, and in both of the team's playoff wins, there were throws by Purdy that were very close to being intercepted – and that could have ended his team's season, given how those games unfolded.

But we've also learned something else over that span, Brock Purdy is an absolute psychopath.

All of those stats about how Kyle Shanahan-coached teams never rallied from fourth quarter deficits? They were 0-fer, and now they're two-fer after these two playoff wins. Purdy is the reason because – irony of ironies – the guy everyone has called a system quarterback and a game manager is anything but.

Purdy tries throws that seem illogical, that seem reckless – and sometimes, when you're down multiple scores, it opens the door for a rally. Detroit ends the game last week if the deep ball Purdy threw to Brandon Aiyuk was intercepted, as opposed to bouncing off a facemask and into Aiyuk's arms for a huge gain, but instead it was perhaps the pivotal play for the comeback.

It gives the 49ers a dynamic they haven't had under Shanahan's Jimmy Garoppolo quarterbacked teams. That makes them pretty dangerous – both to the Chiefs and to themselves.

- *Travis Kelce has been reborn

I largely wrote off the Chiefs – how stupid does that sound right now? - before the playoffs because I did not think their offense had the weapons necessary to make it through multiple rounds. Kelce's production fell off greatly during the regular season, and only the emergence of rookie Rashee Rice late in the year gave Mahomes any kind of reliable alternative.

But by the end of the first quarter of KC's win over Buffalo, something seemed clear: Kelce – be it from conserving himself, or getting some rest in the final week of the regular season, or simply refocusing – looked like himself again. He was blowing past linebackers and running over defensive backs.

This was the missing ingredient for a Chiefs team that certainly boasts the best defense of the Mahomes era.

So we've covered all of that, and it's time for a pick.

This is as hard a Super Bowl to call as I can remember. I'm not sure which Brock Purdy is going to show up – I don't think he'll be intimidated by the stage, though, which goes a long way. If Purdy plays his best game – the game we saw him play for most of the season – I think the 49ers are too much for just about anyone, given their offensive weaponry.

But we tend to lean on who we trust, right?

And, cliché an answer as it is, that's Mahomes for me. I think it's Mahomes for many of you as well, as I've heard many a Chiefs pick thus far in the leadup.

San Francisco is a tempting pick - "the contrarian favorite" is a hard deal to pass on – but I'm going to call the repeat champion.

Chiefs 26, 49ers 17.

Luling artist's work featured on market's king cake boxes

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

Kelly Bourgeois says her three children “think they’re famous.” Well, they’re not entirely wrong. The trio were the models for Bourgeois’ painting of three children atop ladders for a Mardi Gras parade, a painting featured on the king cake boxes sold at Robert Fresh Market. The Hahnville High School alum and Luling resident has worked as an artist full-time for the past eight years, working mostly on commissioned artwork, teaching art classes to youth and also through mobile paint parties. The chance to have her work captured upon these king cake boxes, however, was an especially fun opportunity, she said – and it comes with a few perks.

“It’s a terrible problem for me to have to eat all that king cake,” Bourgeois quipped. “The kids certainly don’t mind.” That opportunity came following a call from Renee Simpson, graphics designer at Melismatic Designs who was working with Robert on its king cake box design. Simpson and Bourgeois have collaborated on other projects relatively frequently and the former thought Bourgeois’ artistic style represented a good fit. “(Robert) wanted an updated look for their king cake box, and they wanted it to be family-oriented,” Bourgeois said. “And, specifically, they wanted three kids on ladders for Mardi Gras.”

Bourgeois went online to look for reference points to begin visualizing the look for her painting. It didn’t take long before she realized a better answer was right under her nose – or perhaps better put, just down the hall. “I was quickly enlightened – hey, I have three children,” Bourgeois said. “I can use them as models.” Bourgeois calls her children her muse in many aspects of her life, but in this case, the meaning was literal. To be able to share the project and in fact have them be part of the finished product was exciting for her. “You could say it put the icing on the cake,” she said. “They’re getting to partake in the excitement right along with me. It’s been pretty great.” Bourgeois has gravitated to artwork throughout her entire life. “I was drawing rabbits in the second grade, and my teacher said, ‘Those are really good.’ And here we are today,” Bourgeois said. She went on to become a student in St. Charles Parish Public Schools’ talented art program. When it was time to choose an area of study in college, she knew she wanted to choose subjects that allowed her to incorporate her creativity. Bourgeois earned a degree in interior design and minored in architectural history.

Bourgeois went into the interior design field for about six years while also working part time as an artist. When Bourgeois and her husband began growing their family, however, she made the decision to stay at home to focus on parenting, with her art business - Studio KB by Kelly Bourgeois - supplementing the family's income and allowing her a creative outlet.

When she gets an alert on her phone and sees another person tagging her in a post about her artwork – and she's been getting plenty of those since the king cakes hit the shelves for this Mardi Gras season at Robert – or when she hears feedback in person, it always feels special.

“To have people supporting me as an artist, I’m just so grateful,” she said. “I’m living out my passion and my dream and when you feel like you have the community behind you, it’s just always exciting and always special.”

When Bourgeois gets some artistic inspiration, she creates at her art studio in Luling.

“I do a lot of watercolors, acrylics ... of people and pets,” she said. “Architectural portraits ... all types of things.”

It’s especially special for her when she captures something in her artwork that makes others feel.

“When your art makes someone emotional, there’s nothing greater than that,” she said. “If you can make something someone is going to cherish, that’s so fulfilling.”

The new king cake box design is expected to carry through the next few years at Robert – which has five locations including the closest in Metairie – and thus Bourgeois’ work will be a regular part of letting the good times roll – and plenty of king cake in the Bourgeois house along with it.
