Wren's Warriors rally around baby once expected to live only minutes

Wren Roberts

meghanm@heraldguide.com

Nearly 60 people in pink shirts waited at the hospital for news of baby Wren's birth.

Wren's Warriors were there to support Wren's parents, Nick and Savannah Roberts, as they prepared to welcome their daughter, and say goodbye.

Doctors had told the Montz couple that their daughter would likely not survive birth, and even if she did, she would likely live only minutes. Wren was diagnosed with several serious health conditions, including multiple heart abnormalities, severe spina bifida, a rare genetic mutation, hydrocephalus and clubfeet. She has no spleen, her heart is on the right side of her body and her stomach developed in her chest rather than its normal abdominal position. Nick said doctors described her condition as incompatible with life.

As the couple prepared for Wren's delivery, Savannah cried, believing she would have to say goodbye to her daughter. Nick prayed that Wren, their firstborn, would live for an hour.

"That's what I asked for," he said. "I asked for an hour."

Wren was born Sept. 7. She was immediately placed on her mother's chest. A deacon baptized her.

"That was a very emotional moment for the both of us," Nick said.

Wren was breathing heavily, but she was breathing. An hour passed, then two, then three.

The next day, doctors determined Wren could tolerate the car ride home, and Nick and Savannah left the hospital with their daughter. A hospice team met them there with oxygen, suction equipment, Brody Taylor loves dinosaurs and animals, and if the 7-year-old Hahnville boy gets rolling on one of those subjects, you'll probably learn more than a few things.

"He's extremely smart," said his father, Corey. "He'll tell you all of these random facts, and we'll Google or ask Alexa to see if he's right. And ninety percent of the time, he's correct."

"He has a very strong will. Even though he deals with all of this, he doesn't look at it as limiting. He accepts it all as it is."

Taylor is also a fighter and has shown immense strength pushing through significant everyday struggles. He was

Bears for Hope fundraiser to assist 9-year-old battling cancer

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

There will be a benefit fundraiser for 9-year-old McKenzie Fasola, who is battling a rare cancer, on Sunday, Nov. 15.

The event is called Bears for Hope – a Teddy Bear Tea, where there will be a silent auction and raffle, raising money to help offset Fasola’s medical expenses. The event will be held at the American Legion Hall at 424 Clayton Drive in Norco.

LSU and Saints autographed memorabilia, as well as paintings and sketches by local artists, and brand name bags will be among the items raffled off. Advance tickets are $20 per adult and $12 per child; at the door, $25 per adult and $15 per child. Every paid attendee receives an orange Kenzie’s Krewe Leukemia awareness bracelet.

There will be princesses and Santa and Mrs. Claus at the event for photo opportunities. There will also be face painting. Children are encouraged to bring their favorite teddy bear or stuffed animal.

This weekend’s Father’s House Fall Festival, which takes place Saturday and Sunday, has also reserved a booth for the family and the fundraising effort. There will be games and prizes at the booth, as well as crafts and snacks for sale.

Fasola began having knee pain several weeks ago and her parents took her to the doctor’s office to check into it.

“At first, they thought it was growing pains,” Parria said. “But the pain got worse.”

Cancer wasn’t detected until a later medical visit led to a blood test – upon receiving the results, the doctor called Fasola’s parents and told them to bring her to the emergency room right away.

More blood work revealed a large, unexpected – and unimaginable – problem.

Moments after earning Homecoming crown, HHS senior leads halftime show

Harper Dufrene already planned on taking the podium to lead the Hahnville High School band in its half-time show during last week’s Homecoming game at Tiger Stadium – she did not, however, expect to be doing so wearing a crown and sash.

Queen. Dufrene quickly had to shift her focus from the excitement of receiving the crown to climbing the podium and lock in as band leader.

“I had to (flip the switch) quickly,” said Dufrene. “I wasn’t quite ready for it but I knew I had a job to do and we have to get this show done.”

Of course, it was also a pretty exciting, and very unique, experience – something that wasn’t lost on her.

“It was just an unreal experience. They were very nervous because I had my heels on and I told them, ‘No, I want to do this in my heels – I think it’ll be a once in a lifetime chance. As long as I get up and down safe, I’ll be good. And I just took it very slow. All the parents were surrounding the podium, and they were nervous for me but I was like, ‘No, I got this,’” medications and other medical supplies.

Nick said the family did not put her down for the first six days. The family held her around the clock, fearing she could pass at any moment. But Wren kept going.

By the third or fourth day, Nick said the family began to realize something was changing.

“She doesn’t want to go,” he recalled thinking.

Instead of preparing for Wren’s death, her parents began learning how to care for her life. At one week old,

Wren underwent surgery at Ochsner Children’s Hospital to repair her spina bifida. She spent six days in the hospital before returning home.

Then came milestones her parents had once been told might never happen.

Doctors had warned that Wren might not have the sucking and swallowing abilities needed to safely take a bottle, Nick said. One day, Savannah noticed Wren seemed to want her pacifier and offered it to her. They tried a bottle next.

“She just took it without a hitch,” he said.

Wren still receives supplemental nutrition through an NG tube because feeding by mouth requires more energy than her heart can always handle. But Nick said her doctors continue to be surprised by what she can do.

“She’s the strongest person I’ve ever seen,” he said.

Wren’s future remains uncertain. Her complex heart abnormalities remain one of her most serious medical challenges, and her family is seeking additional opinions about whether anything can be done to treat them.

Nick and Savannah Roberts with their daughter, Wren.

“She’s not going down without a fight,” Nick said.

The Roberts know Wren will remain medically complex and that no one can tell them what her future will look like. But instead of planning their goodbye, they are now learning how to build their lives around their daughter.

As for Wren’s Warriors, the group has grown to include not just family, but friends, community members and strangers. The family keeps followers updated through the Wren’s Warriors Facebook page.

The community has rallied around the Roberts family through fundraisers and everyday acts of support. Nick said friends and relatives have sold Wren’s Warriors T-shirts, organized a 50/50 raffle and planned other fundraisers. A group of Riverside Academy fifth graders made signs and bracelets at a football game and raised more than $1,600 for the family and a sixth grader at St. Charles Borromeo organized another bracelet fundraiser. Nick’s sister also organized a meal train, and supporters have provided home-cooked meals and more than $1,000 in restaurant and food-delivery gift cards.

“The community has been unimaginably amazing,” Nick said. “Overwhelming support.”

For Nick, the past several months have changed what he considers a miracle.

“Every day with her is a miracle,” he said.

But the conversation about Wren’s future has already changed dramatically. Nick said a cardiologist indicated that without heart intervention, Wren could potentially live for months to years. When Wren’s pediatrician relayed the information, Nick wanted to make sure he had heard correctly.

“I said, ‘Did you say a year or did you say years?’” he said.

The answer was years.

For parents who had once prayed for an hour, it was another miracle.

TAYLOR from 1A

diagnosed with Duchenne muscular dystrophy in 2020. It’s a severe genetic disorder that causes progressive muscle weakness and loss of mass due to a lack of the protein dystrophin.

Duchenne is a rare form of muscular dystrophy, and very debilitating. Treatments have advanced over the years and extended the average lifespan of those suffering from Duchenne muscular dystrophy (DMD), but there is no cure and the illness significantly shortens life expectancy.

Tasks that most people take for granted can become very difficult. He cannot participate safely in activities involving running, jumping, or climbing. Taylor has learned to recognize his own limitations. Rather than playing physically with other children, he’ll sometimes choose individual activities or find children who are sitting down. His parents stressed that this isn’t necessarily because he doesn’t want to participate. He simply understands what he can and cannot physically do.

At school, DMD can also affect speech and learning. His parents noted that children can be labeled as struggling academically when they may simply need more time to process and complete tasks.

Taylor faces his particular challenges each day. He’s also extremely loving, caring and funny, Taylor’s mother Lindsay said, and he’s very shy at first but once he’s out of his shell, he lights up a room.

“He inspires everyone around him with his positive attitude and incredible spirit,” said his uncle Quinn Landry. “He’s just an amazing little kid with the best personality.”

Landry gave a nod to his two older sisters, Lily and Ellie, “who adore him” and who do a very good job of looking after him.

“Lily and Brody are inseparable. They’re like two peas in a pod. I call them double trouble. He doesn’t call her Lily – he calls her Tiny,” Landry said.

Taylor’s a prolific question-asker and can overwhelm his parents with questions. He’s quiet around strangers and at school but becomes extremely talkative and expressive when he’s comfortable and in his own environment. His father jokingly described him as a “mini engineer” because of his interest in blocks and building things.

There’s not a tremendous amount of public awareness about DMD. His parents would like to see that change and are advocates for increasing that awareness. Increased knowledge about it, they said, could be the difference when it comes to a community understanding what a child is experiencing – and why they’re experiencing it.

A child having a bad day, struggling in school or having a behavioral outburst may have an underlying reason for it, be it DMD related or another illness or disability. DMD can involve cognitive and behavioral effects in addition to physical symptoms, Corey noted. Many children with DMD have OCD traits, and some also have autism.

Steroids are commonly used to help protect heart and lung health for those battling DMD, but they can cause irritability, mood swings and weight gain.

“People who don’t know, they’ll just think ‘this is a bad child.’ But the problem is they simply can’t control it,” Corey said.

It’s an example of how a little knowledge can go a long way, he said.

“Anywhere you go, there are cancer awareness days at a school, but there’s not really anything for something like this. And not just Duchenne, but other illnesses a child might be dealing with that the public may not know much about,” Corey said.

Likewise, his parents are advocates for improving accessibility for people with disabilities. Corey pointed out that many places technically meet accessibility requirements but aren’t necessarily designed around the practical needs of someone with a disability - doors without easy-open buttons, insufficient accessible bathroom stalls and grab bars, and buildings designed without mobility limitations in mind.

Brody continues to push forward.

He also has been pretty excited lately – he recently learned that the family will be taking a trip to Disney World later this year, courtesy of Kids’ Kids, a nonprofit that aims to provide hope and happiness to families of children with critical illnesses.

“He’s on his little Kindle and he’s looking - I think like the first two weeks after we told him about it, he was on there looking for rides and it’s, “Dad, look, Mom, look at this ride. We can go do this, we can go do that.’ So, they’re all excited about it. I know he’s really excited about it,” Corey said.

FATHER FEST from 1A

Kristen Curole, the church’s children’s coordinator and fall festival media director, said months of preparation have come together with help from church members, local businesses and others in the community.

“Preparations and behind-the-scenes work have been amazing, and when I say amazing, I’m not meaning it lightly,” Curole said. “We have faced very few challenges, and the ones we have, the Lord has quickly arranged a solution.”

Curole said organizers have received equipment and other donations, while volunteers have stepped forward to help with the event.

The festival will feature 40 vendors each day, offering items ranging from baked goods and home décor to wreaths, jams and jellies. A children’s cake station and DIY slime bar will also be available.

Food options will include Backyard Boil Seafood, 2 Fat Guys & a Pot, Sneaux House, Vanacors Seafood and Da Crab Guy, who Curole said will prepare a large jambalaya.

The festival’s activities will include a corn maze, hayride, sack races, tug of war, bottle toss, duck fishing and other games. Children can also play in a large corn-filled sensory tub and ride a small train made from barrels.

A bee expo will teach visitors about the bees on the church property.

One addition Curole said she is particularly excited about is a prayer tent, which will include a box where visitors can leave anonymous prayer requests.

“Bring your burdens, your worries,” Curole said. “Someone will be there to love on you and pray over you.”

Admission is $15 per child and includes unlimited activities and one pumpkin. Adults accompanying children are admitted free, as are children 2 and younger. Adults attending without children will pay $15.

Visitors can pay with cash or electronically through the church’s Tithely account. A QR code will be available at the admission table for visitors who want to pay by credit card or Apple Pay.

A parking team wearing bright orange shirts will direct visitors when they arrive. Guns, alcohol and fireworks will not be permitted at the festival.

Money raised through the event will support Father’s House Church ministries, including its children’s ministry, youth groups, homeschool co-op and The 41 House, a recovery home located on the church grounds.

The idea for the festival originated with longtime church members Ludy and Mark Dufrene and grew from the church’s desire to use its property for community outreach.

Curole said organizers do not have a specific attendance estimate for the inaugural event but are preparing to welcome whoever comes through the gates.

“We hope that they come and feel loved and know that they are so special and have purpose in our community and just in life in general,” she said.

That message is reflected in a phrase organizers have placed on the festival’s promotional materials: “Everyone is welcome at the table.”

Curole said the church has what members call a “unity tree” on its property, where a cypress and oak grow together. She said the trees have become a symbol of the church’s vision for the community.

“We all have something we can bring to the table,” she said. “We are all in unity together.”

As the first festival approaches, Curole said organizers are most looking forward to welcoming families onto the church grounds.

“We can’t wait to see all of the smiling faces, the family and, of course, the fun,” she said. “He is in it all.”

DUFRENE from 2A

Dufrene said.

When the crowd realized the newly crowned queen was climbing the podium, Dufrene earned a big reaction.

Admittedly a nervous performer in this setting in general, Dufrene usually blocks out the nerves by letting her mind go blank and relying on her instincts to follow what she’s practiced. This was a bit different.

“I felt very conscious of it all. I was kind of just thinking, ‘Wow, is this really happening?’” Dufrene said.

The senior drum major took the field with her fellow members of the Homecoming Court and said she had nerves about that as well, but also that she was OK with whatever way the results fell.

“I knew a lot of the girls on the court, and I really didn’t expect that it would be me,” said Dufrene. “So I was so excited to hear my name called and it was very shocking. Everything hit me at once. I had all of my friends coming up to me after we performed, and my family and the band staff and boosters, and they were so happy and excited for me. That just made me feel so loved in my community and in my family.

“Before I even walked out, although I was nervous about what he results would be, I was also already thinking of all of the tempos I had to do for the dance team song for the show, and going through all of the motions because I knew I’d be conducting.”

Dufrene began playing percussion in the fourth grade and realized quickly she loved to play music.

“We never had marching band in elementary or middle school, so Hahnville was a whole new world to me,” she said of joining the HHS band. “I fell in love with it so much more once I got to high school. And I already loved it so much,. I fell in love with the community and the culture.”

She also set a goal for herself as soon as she began her first HHS band camp as a freshman.

“I really wanted to be drum major,” she said. “And ever since, I’ve worked very hard, playing, conducting and at being a leader in the band.”

Now, she can call herself a drum major – and Homecoming Queen.

BEARS FOR HOPE from 2A

is the most common cancer diagnosed in children, but it also affects adults. Through it all, Fasola has not allowed the situation to dull her spirit, said her grandmother Stephanie Parria. “She’s a remarkable child,” said Parria. “She had never lost her smile.” Parria said the family has been overcome by the outpouring of support from so many people. Some of Fasola’s greatest supporters are those closest to her. Her brother Brody shaved his head in support of his sister as she goes through chemotherapy. He’s been chosen as a SuperSib by the Alex’s Lemonade Stand Foundation for Childhood Cancer. SuperSibs is a specialized national program dedicated to comforting, encouraging, and empowering siblings of children diagnosed with childhood cancer. Fasola’s child life representatives at her oncology clinic referred Brody to the program for being so supportive of his sister and showing how brave he is for her, said the siblings’ mother Courtney.

“He loves to show how much he cares by taking safety precautions around the house like disinfecting, no shoes inside,” said Courtney. “Brody even shaved his head in honor of his sister to show support and raised awareness about childhood cancer at his school. He even likes to help pick up after her so she is never doing anything alone.” Courtney said Brody is certainly a super sibling in his family’s eyes. “We are doing everything we can to make sure he is rewarded for his bravery and how well he is handling everything going on with his sister,” Courtney said. Fasola’s school has also been there for her. St. Rose Elementary recently held a “Wear Yellow and Jeans” day where students and staff could pay $1 (or a small donation) and wear yellow and jeans. Those interested in buying a raffle ticket or other information may contact Stephanie Parria at Hunter61579@yahoo.com or (985) 258-7553.

Hahnville takes aim at 4th win in a row

Terrebonne visits Tiger Stadium tonight with storm forcing rescheduling from Friday

Ryan Arena Editor
ryana@heraldguide.com

What’s been a fun district rivalry in recent seasons comes a day earlier than expected as Terrebonne visits Tiger Stadium to take on Hahnville.

This will be Hahnville’s second straight Thursday night game. The call was made to move this one up due to Tropical Depression Nine. The game is set for 7 p.m.

Terrebonne went 8-4 last season, beating Natchitoches Central in Round 1 of the playoffs before falling to Southside.

This has been a tremendously exciting matchup in recent years.

Last season, Terrebonne captured a 52-38 win at home over HHS. Two years ago, it was Hahnville racing away for a 51-32 victory in Boutte. The schools are 2-2 over their past four against one another and shootouts have been common. Last year saw the largest class of collegiate signees ever from Terrebonne with eight and 21 seniors have departed overall, but the program has been very competitive in Tyler Lewis’ four years as head coach.

Hahnville’s Brayden Fontenot (2), Damine Davis (94) and Beaux Woods (90) tackle an H.L. Bourgeois runner in last week’s Tiger win.

This season, Terrebonne is 2-3 thus far. Including a 29-26 local rivalry win over South Terrebonne last week in non-district action. Terrebonne is 0-1 in District 7-5A play after a 35-28 loss to Thibodaux in its only district game of the season thus far.

“They’re very athletic,” said Hahnville head football coach Greg Boyne. “Tyler Lewis has done a really good job since he’s been there. They’ve gotten to the playoffs and won some playoff games and they compete with pretty much everyone in the district. They’re younger, but still very athletic and they have good size on the defensive side of the ball.”

The new faces start at quarterback with Chase Cagle and Bennett Price. Cagle is a freshman while Price is the more experienced in the offense. They’ve rotated thus far this season.

Terrebonne’s top receiver is Terrance Diggs, who caught two touchdown passes from the former in the team’s loss to Thibodaux.

Destrehan travels to face unbeaten Thibodaux

Wildcats look to extend win streak to four, face rising THS program under Narcisse

Ryan Arena Editor

Destrehan travels to undefeated Thibodaux this week for a special Thursday night District 7-5A showdown.

The game was moved from Friday night up one day due to Tropical Depression Nine.

The Tigers broke out last season under head coach Lowell Narcisse, the former St. James passer who will enter his second season as Thibodaux’s head coach this year. Destrehan won 49-26 at home in last season’s matchup between the teams, clinching the outright district championship for Destrehan. Thibodaux went 8-3 last season and returned to the playoffs, losing in Round 1 to Mandeville.

Both teams are unbeaten thus far in district play. Destrehan (4-1, 2-0) has just one loss overall this season, to St. Augustine in Week 2, and has won its past three games.

Thibodaux (5-0, 2-0) beat Central Lafourche 56-19 last week and Terrebonne 35-28 two weeks ago.

“We’ve certainly seen steady improvement from their program,” said Destrehan head football coach Marcus Scott. “I know Coach Narcisse has been working hard, his staff’s been working hard and they have good players – and so they’re undefeated for a reason.”

The Tigers are very experienced on offense, with most of its lineup from last season returning intact. That includes starting quarterback Damien Robertson, who is learning from a head coach in Narcisse who quarterbacked at LSU and UTSA at the college level. The dual sport athlete is also a talented baseball player. In a Week 2 win over South Lafourche, he threw five touchdown passes.

“That he’s a baseball kid as well, that speaks to his athleticism,” Scott said.

Cemiyan Adams and Braydon Percle lead the running attack while Jacob Terrell is the team’s top receiving target and is a Nicholls State commitment.

“Terrell is a dynamic playmaker,” said Scott. “But they also have (Anzeo Holmes) and (Carlton Ingram). Those are kids with some length who can get the ball. Their backs are outstanding and they can run between the tackles and have the speed to get around the edges.”

Those backs run behind an offensive line that brings

Lady Tigers look to defend district crown

Ryan Arena Editor

Hahnville will kick off District 6-I play next week with a road game at Central Lafourche and an eye on extending an impressive streak.

The Lady Tigers take aim at earning a fifth consecutive district crown, and will have a chance to secure some big wins on their home court along the way with three of its five district showdowns taking place in Boutte.

“We’re excited to get back in our home gym next week and play in front of our crowd, and also just to start district play,” said Hahnville head volleyball coach Mendi LeBoeuf. “We’re hoping that by playing the difficult teams we have and really trying to challenge ourselves that it’s really going to help us when we kick it off on Tuesday. Central Lafourche is a team that’s playing really well and have had a lot of successful outings, so they’re going to be a challenge.”

After starting the season 6-1, Hahnville’s fallen to 9-10 overall. The competition’s been stiff, as recent losses have come to Northshore, which ranks 18th in Division I power rankings, Chapelle (4th in Division I), South Lafourche (5th in Division II) and Northlake Christian (7th in Division IV). Hahnville has earned victories over the past few games, meanwhile, against Live Oak and East Ascension.

“We’re definitely doing some good things, but we’re struggling to do them consistently,” said LeBoeuf. “It’s something we have to keep fighting to improve.”

East Ascension captured the first set in its match with Hahnville before the Tigers reeled off three sets in a row to earn the win, 20-25, 26-24, 25-13, 27-25, with that fourth and clinching set going down to the wire.

“We got off to a pretty rough start but we really challenged ourselves in the second set to have that next point mentality and to play with better pace,” said LeBoeuf.

Maci Hollingsworth, LeBoeuf said, continues to play strong volleyball as the Tigers’ go-to hitter.

Madyn Romero, meanwhile, has been very strong defensively as the Tigers’ libero.

“She’s been very active,” said LeBoeuf of Romero. “She’s really picked up her play and she was instrumental in us beating East Ascension. She had a great match and has continued to play well.”

LeBoeuf said Romero is passing the ball well out of serve receive and brings a spark to the Tigers.

“All around, we’re lucky to have her on the court for six rotations, passing and bringing energy to what we do,” LeBoeuf said.

In Hahnville’s 25-16, 25-21, 25-14 loss to Northshore Tuesday night, Hollingsworth made 10 kills and 10 digs. Layne Gilder served two aces and made eight digs. . Amber Thompson, Marih Myles and Alania Thompson each made three kills.Ava Hogan made 12 digs.

In the team’swin over East Ascension, Hollingsworth led the way with 21 kills and 18 digs. Amber Thompson had six kills and Alania Thompson five. Romero led defensively with 25 digs. Hogan had 11 digsSophia Hotard had 10 digs and Gilder nine digs to go with six aces.

HHS from 7A

“He’s their best guy,” said Boyne. “He’s a taller kid, good sped and good size.”

Sahj Ruffin powers the rushing attack – he tallied 206 yards and four touchdowns last week in the win over South Terrebonne.

“He’s a really good back. He’s probably a bit faster than their big back last year (Quincy Adams) and he played a bit last season as well, so he’s got some experience too,” Boyne said.

Defensively, All-State linebacker Mason Coleman leads the way. Coleman patrols the middle of the field as an inside linebacker and is known as a strong tackler and heavy hitter.

“We’ll have our hands full with him,” said Boyne. “They blitz him, they drop him into coverage, they’ll walk him up and bring him off the edge. He’s very versatile, big, fast and strong.”

Last week’s saw Hahnville (3-2, 1-0) earn a dominant win on Homecoming Week and in its district opener, beating H.L. Bourgeois 36-9.

Fabian Celestine scored three touchdowns for Hahnville to lead the way. It was a third consecutive very strong performance for Celestine as he continues to heat up for a Hahnville team that’s won three in a row.

“It’s just trusting each other and trusting my O-line,” said Celestine of the Tigers’ offense. “And when you have that trust, great things happen. The first two weeks we started off kind of slow. We had to get out of that ... we got back to doing the things we do.”

“Three in a row, that’s where we want to be. Winning’s the expectation, and we want to come out and win next week as well.”

Hahnville’s defense dominated in the first half as HHS established a 34-3 lead at halftime. The second half was played with a running clock.

Landen Teague connected with Early James for a touchdown. Landon Aymond made two field goals. Austin Sanchez recorded a sack in the endzone for a safety and Tyler Martin recovered a fumble.

DHS from 7A

back four starters.

Defensively, Robert Tolbert is a standout cornerback that has drawn the attention of Destrehan’s staff.

“They have one of the better corners around in him,” said Scott. “The defensive line and the linebackers are very active. They’ve got some pieces that can give people problems.”

Destrehan is coming off a dominant performance against East St. John, 36-0 in the Wildcats’ first shutout of the season.

Malachi Dabney scored three touchdowns to lead the offense. Defensive end Avant Carter had a banner night as well with 3.5 sacks and a quarterback hurry to lead a ferocious pass rush.

Dabney carried 13 times for 113 yards. Aushai Smith also scored on the ground while completing 12 of 17 passes for 163 yards. Jaylan Ash caught five passes for 81 yards. Landyn Dugas had a 35 yard reception.

DHS outgained East St. John 308 to 67 in total yardage.

“We had a couple of lapses that led to them getting down into scoring position, and we were able to stand up there and get them off the field, which is huge,” said Scott. “(Carter) had a big night - he’s active and he plays fast and aggressive.”

“When Jesus Was Nailed to The Cross”

When Jesus was nailed to the cross, where were you?
We can all say we weren’t there, but in one way or another we were all there, for our sins nailed Him there as Calvary.
He laid down His life for all of us.
If He hadn’t done that for us, we would all be doomed for Hell with all our sins.
His precious blood covered our sins & set us free,
What a mighty God we serve!
We were made “Righteousness” by His blood.
We are washed by the blood of the Lamb.
The cross made it possible for you & I.
We can be set free, if we follow Jesus & spend eternity with Him in Heaven.
We can reject Him & go to Hell.
We have a free will & choice.
His desire is for us to follow Him & spend eternity with Him in Heaven.
Let us all do that.
One day it will be pay day!
Amen
